Carpenter Urges Special Session On State's Energy Crisis

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Sen. Terry Carpenter, chairman of the Executive Board of the Legislative Council, made it clear Wednesday that he would like some prompt action to help resolve the energy crisis and suggested a special session of the Legislature to deal with the problem.

"This is just the same as war," the veteran legislator from Scottsbluff remarked at one point. "We need some leadership to get accomplished what we have to do.

"I think we ought to do something — even if it's the wrong thing. I don't think our people believe there's a problem. We ought to start preparing for the worst."

The reaction to Carpenter's trial balloon was mixed.

Elton Berck of the Nebraska Farmers Union predicted that a week of below zero temperatures would prove the worth of a special session. And a Nebraska Farm Bureau spokesman, John Klinker, agreed that perhaps a special session is needed.

What that special session could accomplish beyond lowering speed limits was not elaborated on at the meeting between senators and officials involved with fuel problems.

State Tax Commissioner William E. Peters, the man who has been handling the energy situation at the state level for the past few months, noted that the federal fuel allocation plan has preempted state control over most fuels.

"I can do very little as far as regulating the flow of petroleum is concerned," he said. Yet, Peters was hesitant to say that there is nothing the state can do at this time.

"I'm more concerned with getting the fuel we have available to the people who need it now," he said.

Thus far, Peters said, shortages have been on an area basis and not statewide. Adams County, which he said is presently 200,000 gallons short of diesel fuel, has limited sales solely to harvesting and home-heating. An unnamed hospital, he reported, has only 2½ days' supply of fuel left.

Peters acknowledged that there is a black market for fuel and that profiteering is occurring.

Robert Marland of Lincoln, a Nebraska Public Services Commissioner, tossed out a suggestion that the state enact insulation standards for new and existing buildings. He reported that Michigan has taken this step and estimated a 60% savings in home heating.

Under the Michigan program, utilities are required to install insulation in existing homes and charge the homeowner for the improvement on each monthly bill.

Presently, that could not be done in Nebraska, Marland said, because Nebraska is one of only two states that does not regulate the natural gas industry.

Regarding the federal fuel allocation plan, Marland said federal officials made it clear at a meeting last week in Kansas City that, "They're going to rob Peter to pay Paul. Nebraska's Peter and Paul is the east coast."

Other developments that were brought to light at Wednesday's meeting included statements that:

— there will be between a 10% and a 30% shortage of propane for agricultural uses this winter.

— the annual petroleum production in Nebraska dropped by a third during the first eight months of this year.

— states like Oklahoma and Texas are considering an embargo on the amounts of fuel drilled in their states and sent elsewhere.

— some colleges are considering late second semesters in order to save heating fuel.

POW Accord Sealed

Mideast Generals Wrap Up 5 Points

. . . Of 6-Point Cease-Fire

By The Associated Press

Egyptian and Israeli generals agreed in a desert meeting on a prisoner exchange and other issues, with the prisoners to begin going home Thursday morning. The generals sealed the deal by shaking hands and swigging whisky toasts straight from the bottle.

The prisoners were to be flown between Israel and Egypt via Cyprus, according to a United Nations spokesman in Cairo. Earlier, a Red Cross spokesman in Tel Aviv said the flights both ways would be direct. The exchange is expected to take six to eight days.

Israel apparently holds about 30 times as many prisoners as Egypt does.

The accord, reached Wednesday in a tent on the road to Cairo, wrapped up five of the six clauses of the U.S.-sponsored truce agreement signed last Sunday.

The two sides have yet to agree on starting talks regarding proposed withdrawal to the cease-fire lines of Oct. 22, the date the first U.N. call went out to stop shooting.

Other points settled Wednesday, according to the U.N. spokesman in Cairo, were:

— The turning over to U.N. emergency forces Israeli checkpoints on the road between Cairo and the city of Suez.

— Free flow of relief supplies to the city of Suez, an encircled Egyptian city on the west of the Suez Canal at the southern terminus of the waterway, and evacuation of wounded and civilians from the city.

— Shipments of nonmilitary supplies to Egypt's 3rd Army, encircled on both banks of the canal in the area of the city of Suez.

— Strict implementation of the cease-fire.

The agreement on prisoners and other points was reached by Gen. Maj. Gen. Aharon Yariv of Israel and Lt. Gen. Mohammed Gamazy of Egypt, Associated Press correspondent Jonathan Broder reported from the meeting site at Kilometer 101 on the Cairo-Suez road.

The Israeli command said Wednesday in announcing acceptance of the POW arrangement that Cairo had given Tel Aviv a list of 238 prisoners it holds.

Tel Aviv estimates that Syria, which has not signed the Egyptian-Israeli truce, holds about 100 Israeli prisoners.

Israel says it holds about 7,000 Arab prisoners, of which 6,900 are Egyptian and the remaining 100 are Syrians, Moroccans, Iraqis and Jordanians.

Egypt claims Israel is holding 8,400 Egyptians.

In Cairo, the International Red Cross said it would use three planes for the exchange, with wounded men held by each side to go home first.

Nixon Planning Series Of Talks

Washington (UPI) — President Nixon, promising to take his Watergate defense to the nation, will address the National Association of Realtors there Thursday.

The mid-morning address at a Washington Hotel is to be the first in a series of public appearances Nixon has scheduled over the next several days.

He plans to speak and answer questions at the Associated Press Managing Editor's Convention in Orlando, Fla., this weekend. He also is to travel to Macon, Ga., on Sunday to help celebrate the 90th birthday of former Rep. Carl Vinson, the retired dean of the House of Representatives, and the 100th anniversary of the founding of Mercer University Law School.

Then he will fly to Memphis, Tenn., Tuesday for a speech before the National Republican Governors Conference.

About 40 Boatloads Per Acre Picked

These are not duck hunters in a blind but farmers picking corn from their boat. This cornfield on the Wayne Shellabarger farm near Mexico, Mo., was inundated prematurely when a newly built 23-acre irrigation lake nearly filled during a recent heavy rain. Salvaging what they can are Shellabarger, right, and an employe, Andy Barral. The yield, reportedly, is about 40 boatloads per acre.

Crime Unit OKs Funds For WICS Girls' Home

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

A request for $25,000 to continue the operation of a home for girls sponsored by Women in Community Service (WICS) Wednesday won approval from the Region II Crime Commission.

The request, which will now be forwarded to the State Crime Commission, would provide funds to hire 5 paraprofessionals to work with approximately 12 girls and their families and for maintenance of the home at 1935 D St.

Girls in the home enter voluntarily or are referred from juvenile court or welfare agencies. Sponsors told the commission that the home has served about 49 girls to date.

The commission also endorsed an application $35,000 for funds from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) for continued operation of the Youth Service System.

The endorsement was sought in compliance with HEW guidelines for requesting such funds. The Youth Service System (YSS) includes programs such as the Youthmobile, a runaway shelter, a referral program and Y-Riders.

On another matter, commission chairman Roger Larson reported that the police task force of the County-City Implementation Commission (CCIC) has not been assigned to study the commission's jail study report despite being requested to do so by commission member Bob Colin.

Larson said, however, that CCIC chairman Jack Thompson "hinted" that a new task force would be set up to study the area of corrections in Lancaster County.

The commission also approved an application for about $2,200 in federal funds to send two police representatives, two juvenile court representatives and two Lincoln Public school representatives to a juvenile justice conference in New Orleans in January. The commission said a representative from the sheriff's office could also attend on federal funds if Sheriff Merle Karnopp wished.

State Fuel Office Open

State Tax Commissioner William E. Peters said Wednesday that the state office to handle fuel shortage complaints has been opened.

The State Office of Petroleum Allocation is headed by George J. Dworak who can be reached by writing that office at P.O. Box 94841, Lincoln, Neb. 68509, or by calling 402-471-2867.

At this time, Peters noted, that office only has authority over diesel and heating fuels; problems involving propane should be passed on to federal offices.

Peters discouraged personal visits to the office, saying it would not expedite matters but only cause further delays.

Nixon Gets Oil Allocations Bill

Washington (UPI) — For the second consecutive day the Senate Wednesday rushed major energy legislation to President Nixon, then prepared to vote him far-reaching emergency powers before week's end.

The Senate approved 80 to 3 and sent to the White House legislation imposing mandatory allocations of crude oil and refined petroleum products, including gasoline.

The action came one day after Congress gave its final approval to construction of a pipeline to tap the oil-rich fields of Alaska's North Slope.

The Senate planned to begin debate Thursday on legislation giving Nixon short-term emergency powers to deal with the emergy crisis, including rationing of gasoline and other scarce fuels.

The bill would direct Nixon to order state and local governments to cut energy use by 25% within a month; develop a comprehensive plan for rationing fuels within two weeks; force power plants to switch to coal if they can, and order the federal government to cut transportation use of fuel by adjusting airline schedules and freight routes.

Legislation Rushed

The House Commerce Committee, meantime, rushed into hearings on similar legislation empowering the President to deal with the crisis.

The Senate was responding to the situation with unusual swiftness, but Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield criticized the administration for not acting earlier.

"The administration has been too late and its response may now also be too little," Mansfield said at a meeting of the Senate Democratic Policy Committee.

The bill approved by the Senate Wednesday requires Nixon to prepare and implement the allocation and distribution of fuels which are or may be in short supply.

Distribute Shortages

The bill is designed to distribute shortages equitably and protect the public health, safety, and welfare; maintain public services and essential agricultural operations, and provide equitable distribution in all regions and to all consumers.

Congress previously gave Nixon discretionary authority to impose allocations. He has used it only for propane gas and middle distillate fuels.

In other energy-related developments:

— The President directed his chief energy adviser, John A. Love, to meet with a special task force and report to him Thursday on steps being taken to conserve energy.

— Robert E. Plett, assistant director of the Interior Department's petroleum allocation program, said allocations will inevitably lead to inequities for some fuel users and probably disrupt the economy in the long run.

— Chairman Herbert Stein of the Council of Economic Advisers suggested higher taxes on gasoline and other energy sources to help increase supplies.

— Bills were introduced in the House to freeze mass transit rates to discourage auto use, and to limit busing of children to the schools nearest their homes.

Body Shops Say Insurers Fix Rates

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Insurance companies in Lincoln are guilty of price-fixing for repair work and boycott certain body shops which do not charge the prevailing local rate, according to charges by body shop owners and employes in Lincoln.

The men said in an interview they are taking steps to organize a formal association representing the 46 body shops in Lincoln to combat the insurance companies.

Further, they said, the association would work to raise the basic hourly rate to offset current higher costs for labor and materials, and to compare the mutual problems of body shops.

About 25-30 body shop representatives first met in Lincoln Oct. 18 to discuss forming the group. Another meeting is set Thursday at Misle Chevrolet.

Dean D. Hillhouse, owner of Dean's Radiator & Body Shop, said State Farm Insurance Co. "dictates and controls the pricing structure." He pointed out that the company writes its own estimates at $8 an hour — and "some with a discount" — for body shop repairs.

'Same As 10 Years Ago'

"We're still getting basically the same thing (hourly rate) from insurance companies that we got 10 years ago. It's hurting us," said Bob O. Harrah, a body shop manager who said he was speaking for himself and not his employer.

In one instance, Hillhouse said, State Farm referred a damaged auto to his shop and "told the owner that if I could fix it" at State Farm's estimated price to "go ahead. If not, go someplace else."

Hillhouse said the owner of the car complied with State Farm's instructions because he was afraid the company would cancel his auto policy if he did not cooperate.

Hillhouse also said his accountant had advised him to charge $10 an hour with no discounts, just to stay in business. He showed a letter he wrote to State Farm explaining that he would charge the $10 rate.

State Farm replied, in a letter Hillhouse showed, saying it would pay whatever rate was fair. However, the State Farm policyholder referral described above occurred after Hillhouse received State Farm's reply.

State Farm's method is "helping to control the raising of prices," said Gary L. Hemminger, co-owner of a Lincoln body shop.

Jerry A. Rohren, Nebraska property claims superintendent for State Farm Insurance Companies, replied to the charges in an interview.

Rohren explained that State Farm's drive-in service center — where the company writes its own repair estimates — was established for "quicker, faster service to people involved in an accident."

"As I've talked to the shops, they like having us write the estimates," Rohren added.

Customer Asked Where

He said after the estimate is made, State Farm asks the policyholder where he would like to have his car repaired. Then, he said, "we'll apply the pricing structure for that shop."

The carrier made a survey of all garages in 1968, Rohren said, and continually updates that information detailing what hourly rate each shop charges. State Farm's records include rates for the 46 Lincoln body shops and one each in Eagle and Ceresco.

Harrah maintained that body shops are "afraid they'll be black-balled" if they don't repair cars at State Farm's estimated hourly rate, "and if that isn't price-fixing, I don't know what is."

Another body shop owner who asked not to be identified said if insurance companies learn a body shop charges more than the prevailing hourly rate, "they will see to it you don't get any more work." He added, "Another (body shop) sees that, and he won't raise his prices."

'Can Go Anywhere'

Rohren said State Farm policyholders "can go anywhere in town." When told the body shop representatives' charges, he said, "The information you have I think is completely inaccurate."

Rohren produced records showing that body shops in Lincoln charge a rate ranging from $7.50 to $9.00. Body shops "let us know ordinarily whenever they want to change" their rate, he said.

"The owner of the auto determines the price we apply," depending on what shop the owner wants to do the repairs, Rohren said. He produced records indicating payments of varying hourly rates to local shops.

The records showed further that in 1968, State Farm paid a rate ranging around $6.50; they also showed that dealers and independent body shops notified State Farm throughout the last five years of increases — in some cases up to five hikes — ranging from 50 cents to $1 a time.

Hemminger emphasized that an association of body shops in Lincoln would not attempt to act as a price-fixing organization. It would, however, work to show justification to increase the hourly rate, he said.

Materials Up 25%

Harrah said prices for materials since 1969 have gone up 5% each year — or a 25% increase, and he explained he was citing wholesale prices.

Further, the men agreed, body shops are paying more for substantial investments in equipment. "Our main goal is to show a profit," Harrah said. "If material costs go up, we've got to compensate."

Body shop owners are considering charging for making a repair estimate. Now, most are done free.

The men stressed that their objection to free estimates is based on the car owner who gets several estimates but doesn't intend to have repairs made; instead, he submits the estimates to his insurance company, pockets the payment, and lives with the dent. In such cases, body shops are merely "being used," the men said.

A fee for making an estimate would be applied to the car owner's final repair bill, Harrah said, thus if the work is done, the consumer loses nothing.

The body shop association — "It's coming," Harrah said — would also provide a forum for owners and employes to talk over their mutual problems.

"We have to create a better harmony among the body shops," Hemminger said. "You have to know what your competitor's problem is, because his is yours."

Nixon Ponders Query Session By Anchormen

Hatboro, Pa. (AP) — President Nixon is considering the possibility of a question-and-answer session with anchormen from the three major television networks as a method of disclosing Watergate matters, two Pennsylvania congressmen said Wednesday.

The idea of an in-depth television interview with Walter Cronkite, John Chancellor and Howard K. Smith was one of a number of possibilities.

Israel, Egypt Agree To Exchange War Prisoners

(c) New York Times News Service

Jerusalem — Israeli and Egyptian negotiators ended a three-day old impasse by agreeing on the immediate exchange of prisoners. The agreement appeared to clear the way for a full-scale Arab-Israeli peace conference that is expected to open in Geneva next month. Under the terms of the exchange agreement, prisoners will be returned on direct flights between Cairo and Tel Aviv by Red Cross planes. The exchange is expected to take a week to complete. (More on Page 1.)

U.S.-Peking Communique Signed

Tokyo — Secretary of State Kissinger left China after signing a joint communique that appeared to move Washington and Peking a step closer to full diplomatic relations. The statement, worked out with Premier Chou En-lai, appeared to have narrowed the gap on the Taiwan issue by pegging full diplomatic ties to American confirmation of "the principle of one China." (More on Page 2.)

Firing Of Cox Ruled Illegal

Washington — A federal judge ruled that the dismissal of the special Watergate prosecutor, Archibald Cox, violated a Justice Department regulation prohibiting such a removal "except for extraordinary improprieties." In ruling that the dismissal ordered by the President was illegal, Judge Gerhard A. Gesell did not order Cox reinstated, but his decision was expected both to strengthen the independence of the new prosecutor, Leon Jaworski, and to discourage Congress from placing his office under court supervision. (More on Page 4.)

Price Of Gold Drops $7 An Ounce

Paris — The price of gold dropped $7 to about $90 an ounce on major European markets in the wake of the termination of an agreement that had barred free market gold sales by national monetary authorities. The United States and six European countries now assert the right to sell — but not to buy — gold on the open market, which is expected to lead to less gold and more paper currency in national monetary reserves used to settle international accounts. (More on Page 26.)

America Could Lose, Nixon Warns

Washington — Warning against moves to secure his resignation or impeachment, President Nixon told Republican members of Congress that "if you cut the legs off the president, America is going to lose." In the second of a series of White House meetings designed to help restore his credibility, Nixon warned that American allies might "lean toward" the Soviet Union if the authority of the presidency were diminished.

Sirica Rejects Tapes Offer

Washington — Judge John J. Sirica rejected a presidential offer to give the court non-subpoenaed White House tapes, saying that it would turn the court into a "depository" and "clearinghouse" for extraneous material. In a memorandum, the judge said he was seeking evidence regarding the "failure to produce subpoenaed material" — the two "non-existent" tapes — and had no interest in receiving material that had not been subpoenaed. (More on Page 4.)

U.S., China Edge Closer To Full Diplomatic Ties

©The New York Times

World News

Tokyo — Secretary of State Kissinger left China Wednesday after signing a joint communique which seemed to move Washington and Peking another step closer to the establishment of full diplomatic relations.

In the language worked out by Kissinger and Premier Chou En-lai early Wednesday morning in Peking, the two sides appeared to have narrowed the gap on the complex issue of the nationalist government on Taiwan — that main obstacle up to now to the complete normalization of relations between the former antagonists.

According to the 700-word document, the Chinese now believe that there can be full diplomatic ties once there was a confirmation of "the principle of one China" by the United States.

This Chinese assertion will have to be worked out through negotiations, American officials said, but it seemed so close to the United States position of not challenging Peking's view that there "is but one China" that a senior American official said here — shortly after Kissinger arrived for talks with Japanese leaders — that there was now hope for "a definite movement to normalization."

The communique was issued Wednesday evening by Kissinger's party in Tokyo, and simultaneously in Peking and Washington.

There were other significant elements in the communique, the official said, besides the Taiwan development. These included:

—A willingness by the Chinese to engage in discussions in the future with the United States on broad ranges of international questions, enlarging upon their earlier agreement in the Shanghai communique, after President Nixon's visit to Peking in 1972, to discuss matters of mutual interest.

—The Shanghai communique in 1972 had called upon the two sides to stay in contact, and specifically provided for Kissinger's trips to Peking. The new communique goes beyond that, to include "frequent contact at authoritative levels" in Washington and Peking. The document said that this was "of particular importance" at this time, but did not specify why.

—The liaison offices in each capital would be widened in scope, presumably to include consular, trade and information services.

—Although not mentioned in the communique, the Chinese told the American officials in Peking that they were not opposed in principle to allowing American news organizations to open permanent bureaus in Peking. But they expressed concern about the reciprocal rights of Chinese newsmen in Washington.

U.S. To End Israel Airlift

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will end its month-long emergency airlift to Israel Thursday after delivering more than 22,000 tons of weapons and ammunition.

Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim announced Wednesday that no flights by U.S. transport planes to Israel are scheduled for Thursday.

While Friedheim stopped short of declaring the airlift operation at an end, he indicated this is the case when he said, "it is our view that the emergency that required the airlift is over."

This was a reference to the heavy equipment losses suffered by the Israeli air force and army which prompted President Nixon to order the emergency resupply by air which started Oct. 14 and has been running around the clock since then.

According to the U.S. Air Force, a total of about 570 missions by giant C5 transports and smaller C141 cargo planes have hauled about 22,600 tons of materiel from the United States since Oct. 14.

Royal Pair Start Long Honeymoon

London (AP) — Princess Anne and her cavalry officer husband slipped off to the countryside Wednesday night for the start of their honeymoon after a glittering wedding day that brought cheering throngs to the streets of London.

Buckingham Palace sources said Anne and Mark Phillips were spending the night at the secluded home of her cousin Princess Alexandra — Thatched House Lodge — nestled in the center of the 2,258-acre Richmond Park in South London. They leave Thursday by air for Barbados and an 18-day cruise of the Caribbean and the Pacific off South America, aboard the royal yacht Britannia.

Princess Alexandra, her husband Awgus Ogilvy and their three children spent the night elsewhere.

Buckingham Palace officially kept secret the place where Anne and Mark would spend their first honeymoon night.

After the marriage ceremony in Westminister Abbey and a royal feast of lobster and partridge in Buckingham Palace, the couple drove to the Royal Hospital Chelsea for a wedding day visit. They entered the front door, but left through the back door to a waiting car that took them to Richmond Park, the palace informants said.

The couple was married before a worldwide television audience estimated at hundreds of millions.

Queen Elizabeth's only daughter became Mrs. Mark Phillips in the historic Abbey on London's biggest royal day in more than a decade.

There were no public kisses and no tears among the royal family and their guests as the 23-year-old princess became a bride.

But in the streets there was revelry. Crowds sang "Get Me to the Church on Time" as Anne rode to the Abbey, and chanted "We want the bride" as she and her 25-year-old commoner husband left for the wedding feast at Buckingham Palace after the ceremony.

Trumpets blared, drums rolled and choirs sang in the 900-year-old church before 1,800 invited guests and the televised solemnity took England's attention briefly away from threatened oil shortages and economic crisis.

In firm, steady voices, the couple exchanged vows, eyes dry. Television cameras, permitted to show no more than Anne's veiled profile, carried the scene around the world.

Anne wore a white silk gown and diamond tiara. Mark wore a red dress uniform, spurs and sword.

The princess, fourth in line to the British throne, looked straight into the eyes of the dashing cavalry officer. Asked if she would love, honor and obey him "so long as ye both shall live," Anne replied: "I will."

Phillips was not given a title, at his request. Anne will now be known as "The Princess Anne, Mrs. Mark Phillips."

After the ceremony the young couple beamed as they walked arm in arm down the blue-carpeted 450 steps from the Abbey. They boarded the glass coach for a ride past 45,000 cheering, flag-waving Britons back to Buckingham Palace and the wedding feast.

Liveried coachmen in powdered wigs, and horsemen in armored breastplate mounted the royal escort with the pomp and pageantry only the British provide these days. It was a rare warm and sunny winter day.

Nine horse-drawn carriages and landaus were in the procession from the Abbey to the palace, taking with them a broadly smiling queen, in blue silk coat and dress, her husband Prince Phillip in admiral of the fleet's uniform, and other members of the royal family.

It was the biggest royal occasion here since the wedding of the queen's sister, Princess Margaret, in 1960.

Longer Interim Backed At Wesleyan Meeting

A proposal to extend the between semesters interim by two weeks to help save fuel during the energy crisis was approved by a mass meeting at Nebraska Wesleyan University.

The town hall session involved some 300 students, faculty and administrators.

The energy saving measure won only narrow backing, 132 to 128 with five abstentions, and is to be submitted to the Student Affairs Senate and faculty for their approval. The plan would extend the semester by two weeks in the spring.

The same measure urged lowering thermostats, organizing car-pools, for students and faculty and removing window air conditioners and improving insulation.

A resolution calling for impeachment of President Nixon was postponed indefinitely on an 80 to 70 vote.

Defeated during the evenings's meeting were proposals to change the grading system, to delay rush week activities one week in the fall, to keep the campus center open 24 hours a day, and to establish an organization to honor students for work in the community.

Approved were proposals asking for storage areas for bicycles, changing the time when a student must declare he is taking a course pass-fail, easing penalties for use of alcohol beverages, urging immediate work on renovation of Old Main, letting first semester freshmen have voting rights in the Student Affairs Senate, easing the time period for withdrawing from a course, allowing upperclassmen and freshman 20 years old choose whether to live on or off campus, and changing the system for meal tickets.

All measures approved at the mass meeting must go to the Student Affiars Senate for action. If the SAS approves a measure, it goes to the president of the college for his approval or veto. Vetoes may be appealed to the Board of Governors.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Thursday

Leo requires an audience. The performance lacks luster when the theater is only half-filled. Leo responds to applause, more so than most persons. The pride of the lion is of paramount importance. This native needs a cheering section and when it is present there is little or nothing that Leo will not do to liven the proceedings. Leo will roll over or snarl or be a purring baby or a roaring adult. Whatever, the show is on and Leo usually is center stage.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You will be given choice of consolidating or expanding. Key is to be sure that what you have is on solid base. Cancer, Capricorn persons could be in picture. What appears to be a disagreement could fall into lovers' quarrel category.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You break loose from restriction. You have more chance to express yourslef. Welcome opportunity for social contacts. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. One who seemed out-of-reach will become accessible.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Check details before embarking on any journey. Relatives, neighbors tend to overlook basics. Depending on others now could be an error. Deal with Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio individuals. Special message provides incentive.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Money picture is brighter due to change of procedure. You are able to analyze and come up with answers. Gemini, Virgo persons could figure prominently. One who co-operates with you also could provide finances.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Lunar cycle promises advancement, creative activity and more independence. Question of marriage arises. Married or single, you may be concerned with co-operative effort, a unique kind of partnership. Deal with Taurus, Libra persons.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): See clearly, not through haze of self-deception. One who is confined or handicapped makes request. Fulfill it. What you give will be returned, with dividends. Pisces may be in picture. Restriction, confinement is but temporary.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent is on hopes, wishes. You take steps toward fulfillment. Persons you respect pay meaningful compliments. You are granted opportunity to put ideas into action. Accept responsibility. Reward is highlighted.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov 21): Finish rather than begin; emphasize accomplishment. Review basics. Take nothing for granted. Round out picture. Broaden horizons. Be aware of potential. Find better ways of distribution. Get product before public.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You have opportunity to be more independent in thought, action. Dynamic individual expresses confidence. Ego gets a boost. News from a distance is contructive. Submit plan, concept, manuscript. Don't limit yourself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19): Consolidate. Pull in reins — take second look. Survey money situation. You have more to offer than might be apparent on surface. One who schemes might get "smell" of money — at your expense. Protect self in clinches.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Temporary setback is due to rebound in your favor. Know it and don't despair. Sagittarius, Gemini persons are in picture. Accent is on co-operation, partnership, public relations. Popularity rating will zoom upward!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You receive benefit of doubt. Peers judge you "innocent." One who makes threats does so out of fear, frustration. Stick to principles — and the facts. Don't be swayed by whispered promises. Insist on collateral. Highlight what actually occurred, not fantasy.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have fine voice, a sweet tooth, a pleasant nature and a tendency to be attracted to persons who take advantage of you. You made new sstart this year and you will be on more solid footing in December. Leo, Aquarius, Taurus and Scorpio persons play major roles in your life. Avoid excess where eating, drinking enter picture. You will understand.

Firing Of Cox Is Ruled Illegal

Washington (UPI) — Federal Judge John J. Sirica Wednesday gave President Nixon the go-ahead to make public any Watergate evidence he pleases — a tack Nixon reportedly is anxious to take to prove his innocence in the scandal.

But almost simultaneously, another federal judge ruled that the firing of Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox — done on Nixon's orders Oct. 20 because he pushed too hard to get secret presidential tapes and documents — was illegal.

There were these other developments in the Watergate case:

— Several Republican congressmen, after meeting with Nixon in the morning, said he is eager to make his story public and would release information from his private tapes and papers if Sirica approved.

— Sirica, chief judge of the U.S. District Court here who has been handling the case, filed a "memorandum" saying Nixon need not seek his approval before submitting any evidence to the grand jury or the public if he chooses.

— U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell ruled in a suit brought by Ralph Nader and three members of Congress that Cox had been "illegally discharged" by Acting Attorney General Robert H. Bork. But Gesell took no action to reinstate Cox because Cox did not ask for his job back and another special prosecutor, Leon Jaworski, has been named.

— Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, turned down a reported offer from Nixon to meet with him and the committee vice chairman, Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn. "I'm not goint to the White House without the entire committee," Ervin said.

— Officials of Ashland and Gulf Oil Companies told the Ervin committee how they had bowed to pressures from Nixon campaign officials and illegally contributed $100,000 each from corporate funds to Nixon's re-election effort. Both said former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans, later Nixon campaign finance chief, had solicited the gifts.

In his three-page "memorandum" on Nixon's secret tapes, Sirica rejected Nixon's pledge made Monday to surrender to the court a number of other tapes and documents not required under an existing subpoena.

Sirica said he "will not receive extraneous material of testimony" nor become "a depository of non-subpoenaed matter."

He added: "If the President thinks it advisable to waive any privilege and make tapes or other material public, he of course is free to do so at any time. Should he want to provide the grand jury with materials that do not relate to the present hearing or materials that have not been subpoenaed, he should do so through the grand jury's counsel, the special prosecutor, and not through the court."

At his Oct. 26 news conference, Nixon said it would "not be proper" to make his Watergate tapes public since a federal appeals court had not ordered that to be done and "Judge Sirica, of course, would not do anything that would be in contravention" of that order.

Sirica is holding hearings on White House claims that two subpoenaed presidential conversations were never recorded and one whether the remaining seven subpoenaed tapes have been tampered with.

In his ruling on the Cox case, Gesell said Bork had no authority to fire Cox or to abolish the special prosecutor's office — both of which Bork did on Nixon's orders.

"The firing of Archibald Cox in the absence of a finding of extraordinary impropriety was in clear violation of an existing Justice Department regulation having the force of law and was therefore illegal," Gesell said.

He said further that Bork's action less than three weeks later in reinstating the office was "simply a ruse to permit the discharge of Mr. Cox . . . and must be held arbitrary and unreasonable, and must be held to have been without force or effect."

But Gesell said the court "must remain neutral" in the case and so only Congress, through legislation, can protect the special prosecutor from interference by the executive branch.

Cox, from his summer home in Maine, said the only important thing was that investigations and prosecutions go on — whether by Jaworski or someone else named under new legislation in the future.

"For me to make any legal claims under Judge Gesell's decision would only divert attention from getting the real job done," he said.

The Senate Watergate committee, meanwhile, continued its probe into financing of the 1972 presidential race by hearing testimony from officials of companies that have admitted making illegal campaign donations.

All have testified their money went into Nixon coffers — but Gulf said it also chipped in $10,000 to the presidential campaign of Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and $15,000 to that of Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., in addition to $100,000 to Nixon's.

The committee will be in recess next week and plans to wrap up its public hearings — which began May 17 — by Dec. 7 to allow time to finish its final report by a Senate-set deadline of Feb. 28.

Committee staff said it was "possible" that Nixon's close friend, Florida banker C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo, might be called to testify after Thanksgiving.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

Widows Are Urged To Be Less Choosy

By ROBERT PETERSON

QUESTION: — "Many widows could remarry if they weren't so choosy. Take me. I taught in our high school and later married the principal. We had no children but had 32 wonderful years together. I was widowed at 58 and knew I'd never find another husband like Bill. He was so intelligent and really loved me despite the fact that I'm no bargain in the looks department. There was simply no other man available in my 'class' so I began cultivating a widower who ran a delivery service in town. He had worked for me occasionally and was very reliable. We didn't have much to say to each other, but we felt comfortable in each other's presence and a real bond of companionship. My friends were shocked when I married him — said he was beneath me. But we're really happy. He treats me like a queen and I tell him he's my prince charming. When I get him all dressed up he looks like a college professor."

ANSWER: — To each his own. It's possible to be too choosy. But many widows doubtlessly prefer living alone than marrying someone with whom they feel they have little in common. It all depends on how much one wants remarriage and how lucky on eis in finding someone who meets minimum requirements.

QUESTION: — "My wife is crazy about poodles and has had half a dozen of them during the 38 years we've been wed. The current one has a very excitable temper and hates strangers. He bit the postman and this resulted in a long hassle with the post office which refused for several months to deliver our mail. Then he bit a neighbor child on the hand, which resulted in a threatened lawsuit. Last week he got tangled in his leash and when Tina was trying to untangle him he got excited and bit her on the forearm so deeply she had to go to the hospital. She says she still loves him, but I hate the darn dog and want to have him put to sleep. What do you say?"

ANSWER: — It's one thing to love animals but quite another to have an animal around which offers a constant physical threat to humans. It's my view that dogs which have actually bitten people, and which have mean, unstable temperaments, should be put away. Many oppose capital punishment for pets but in the absence of prisons where these threats to society can be kept this is the only answer.

☆☆☆

QUESTION: — "You were too lenient with that widow who wrote saying she expects a letter once a week from each of her four children. Why should they write her weekly? She's just making them feel guilty and resentful by her nagging. I'm no paragon, but when my only son went into the Navy I decided never to demand letters. I write him good, newsy letters and always enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for this reply which works like a charm as a non-nagging reminder that he owes Mom and Dad a letter. Parents should want letters that come because children want to write, not because they feel pressured."

ANSWER: — You're right. Unless grown children have a natural motivation to write they probably won't write regularly and it does little good to nag. On the other hand, there's nothing wrong with reminding them how eagerly letters are wanted. Your system of enclosing a stamped reply envelope is an excellent one.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Just how totally dependent this nation is on an abundant supply of natural resources is likely to become painfully clear to all of us in the coming months, maybe years. We will feel the current energy crisis in areas far beyond a lower thermostat, less gasoline for our cars and the other direct results now anticipated.

There is likely to be serious disruption of our economy as a result of this situation, something that may affect us in all aspects of our lives. It must be remembered that energy is directly related to jobs.

Our economic system is built on the power of the nation to produce and therein are the jobs that men and women must have to sustain themselves and their families. When a business closes down on Sunday, as may be the national pattern before this is all over, a lot of jobs go out the window.

If it were a simple matter of just saving the energy needed to remain open on Sunday, the sacrifice would be relatively easy to make. But when you eliminate jobs to make the fuel savings, you are adding another dimension to things.

And while most people might say that Sunday closing of business is a good thing, regardless of the energy crisis, such an action is still an economic step backward. Whether socially popular or not, Sunday business activity has become an integral part of retailing and its absence will be felt in terms of total sales and profits.

We have seen reports of some small communities that are threatened with near disaster as a result of fuel shortages that indicate the closing of major industrial complexes. Some of these towns stand to lose their one and only major base of employment.

★

When the Lincoln Transportation System curtails its bus service, it will do more than save on diesel fuel. It will also eliminate the jobs of some 12 to 14 bus drivers.

This is going to be felt throughout the length and breadth of the nation's business and industry. Sales of smaller rather than larger cars will ultimately result in less business and fewer jobs in the whole range of automotive sales and services, to say nothing of the possible gas rationing.

Generally speaking, a shortage of energy is going to result, also, in some inefficiencies. The state of Nebraska, for instance, may save fuel by limiting employes to car speeds of 50 miles an hour but the time loss here is going to be paid for in hourly wage rates that could easily exceed the dollar savings on fuel use.

We are also a nation wedded to the growth factor of development. Without growth, our whole system of capital investment, stock market activities and profits is subject to new and unknown factors.

While some theorists may welcome a curtailment of growth, the fact is that this has been our sustinence in the past and may be reversed without advance thinking and planning of the alternatives. A nation as short on energy as the U.S. apparently is cannot escape an overall slippage in its total economy.

We have no crystal ball that can tell us what the final consequences of all this might be but we anticipate the future will be far more disturbing throughout the economy than might be indicated by initial steps toward the conservation of energy. We have concentrated on the savings end of things but largely ignored the economics.

RICHARD L. WORSNOP

Presidential Credibility Long Scored By Public

WASHINGTON — A catch-phrase of the 1960s has achieved new currency in Washington. As the Watergate surprises mount ever higher, talk of a presidential "credibility gap" grows in proportion. When news of the two non-existent White House tapes broke, many members of Congress said that President Nixon's credibility had suffered additional damage.

Well, it's an old problem, as Nixon himself surely knows. Shortly after North Korea's seizure of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo in January, 1968, Nixon said that the country's long-range need was to "reestablish the credibility of American policy by re-establishing the credibility of American power."

The president at that time was Lyndon B. Johnson, whose credibility had been suspect since the 1964 election campaign. Critics of LBJ's Vietnam policy never tired of citing a statement the President made on Oct. 21, 1964: "We are not about to send American boys nine or ten thousand miles to do what Asian boys ought to be doing for themselves." Within six months, the United States had doubled the size of its forces in South Vietnam.

☆ ☆ ☆

American history is replete with doubts cast on presidential credibility. A notable example involved the country's entry into the Mexican War of 1846-48. President Polk sent U.S. troops into a disputed border region between the Nueces River and the Rio Grande. The Mexican government considered their presence an act of aggression and its forces shelled an advanced American position.

Polk thereupon proclaimed that American blood had been shed on American soil and thus persuaded Congress to declare war. However, the President was repeatedly challenged by the Whig opposition to produce evidence that the attack occurred on American territory. Abraham Lincoln, then a young congressman, introduced a number of resolutions demanding to know the exact spot. He rejected Polk's claim as "sheerest deception."

Standards of credibility can be affected by the standards of the time. President McKinley said he prayerfully searched his soul before deciding to keep the Philippines in American possession — in order to uplift and Christianize the inhabitants. His explanation would be hooted down today, but at the turn of the century it seemed thoroughly credible to a great part of the public.

Statements of subsequent presidents came back to haunt them. In the depth of the Great Depression, in March 1931, Herbert Hoover declared: "Prosperity is just around the corner." In a 1940 campaign speech, Franklin D. Roosevelt told a Boston audience: "Your boys are not going to be sent into any foreign wars."

☆ ☆ ☆

And now Richard M. Nixon faces perhaps the most severe credibility crisis of all. The National Review observed: "Perhaps the surrender of the tapes will prove a turning point, but if not (as is more likely) and if the public distrust and rejection of Mr. Nixon persists, deepens further, and hardens, the country will be facing the crippling and possibly catastrophic prospect of three years without . . . a legitimate government."

After the Cuban missile crisis of 1962, assistant secretary of defense Arthur Sylvester asserted that "the government had the right, indeed the duty, to lie if necessary to mislead the enemy and protect the people it represented." Few would dispute that right when national security is at stake. But it is a right that cannot be invoked too often. For credibility is far easier to lose than to restore.

FUEL OIL EXPORTS UP 185% DESPITE U.S. SHORTAGES

Bus Service Cutback

Public bus service in Lincoln will be cut back beginning Sunday because of the fuel shortage and that it should happen points up the nation's unpreparedness and the inequitable solutions to combatting the shortage that have been offered thus far.

The Lincoln Transportation System will eliminate Sunday service and service after 6:15 p.m. on other days to meet a 40% reduction in the city's diesel fuel allotment. The service cutback will only be temporary, city officials promise, and full service will be restored when the city "gets some relief." When that will happen, of course, is anybody's guess. More likely, further cutbacks are in store.

The people who will be penalized by the cutback in bus service will be, generally, the people who have contributed least to the fuel shortage. While they have depended on public transportation, others have used their share of fuel.

It isn't enough to say that regular bus patrons are only a small percentage of the mobile public and thus they should be penalized rather than the high-volume fuel consumers enjoying their own transportation. And that is exactly what we are doing when we don't devise a system whereby public transportation fuel needs are met.

During the fuel shortage, especially, public transportation should be encouraged, rather than cut back. The savings in motor fuel could be enormous if enough people used the bus at least part of the time, rather than driving themselves.

We think our national leadership should be able to devise some form of allocation program that channels sufficient amounts of the fuel available to public transportation systems. Such a program should already have been implemented. Any further delay would be uncalled for.

When In Doubt, Recess

It's business as usual for the House of Representatives.

That business being a long recess, this one to correspond with the Thanksgiving holiday.

With the nation reeling from the effects of an energy shortage, a scandal-ridden administration, a vacancy in the vice presidency and a host of other problems all deserving of legislative attention, the House voted itself a 10-day Thanksgiving recess starting Friday.

The vote to take the recess was close, 215-190, so it would appear that quite a number of members were embarrassed about going home for Thanksgiving a week early. Some had said earlier that the House would subject itself to criticism if it took more than a token recess.

But in the end, better judgment was denied and the holiday was declared.

It can be argued that the representatives should go home for a while to learn what their constituents think about the fuel shortage and the voluntary and proposed regulatory methods to combat it, the cost of living, the Nixon resignation or impeachment issue, the Watergate investigation and so forth.

But we think that the lines have long been drawn on most of those issues and as for the energy crisis, most of the nation is in such shock from the immediacy of it and our unpreparedness for it that now action more than talk is required.

The problems of the nation will not go away in ten days if Congress stays on the job. But if things are as bad as they appear, people can't be blamed for wondering why their elected representatives don't want to devote full time to working out a few solutions.

From the way the House is acting, it looks as if there is nothing wrong in the country that a ten-day holiday recess won't cure.

LA VERNA HASSLER

Patchwork Prairie Country

Sometimes our orchard and the long land are like a stage on which some of the most delightful real-life dramas or comedies are played . . . wild-life dramas, I might add.

This morning as I made breakfast, I looked out of the big kitchen window, scanned the immediate area where the cottonwood tree has almost covered the ground with golden leaves nearest the house, then viewed the long lane, now umber brown with dead growth of summer. To my startled surprise, two deer were walking down the lane, in no great haste, stopping now and then to graze from the side of the road.

We watched them go to the end of the lane out onto the road. Then because of the trees, we could not see them until a few moments later when I looked out the window again and saw one right in our front yard by the hedge. It had come up the land this time and stood only a few feet from our front door. When it saw a big yellow cat walk across the yard, it pricked up its ears out through the orchard once more.

By this time The Farmer and I were quite excited about our newfound animal kingdom in which we were living. We went into the front room where we could look out into the yard at the opposite side of the house. There was the other deer grazing while waiting for the one that had been a bit more adventuresome in coming almost to the door for breakfast.

Within a few seconds the grazing deer was joined by a doe and for a moment I thought we were deep in the untamed north woods. At their own pace they ambled into the trees at the rim of the farm where many small saplings and undergrowth have developed lavishly the last two years with all the rain that has fallen.

Several neighbors have told us of late that they have come by our place in early morning or late evening and seen the deer in the orchard or on the lane but this is the first time we have seen them. We are convinced now that they are finding a safe place for hiding in our very own dooryard and so have made their quarters here . . . perhaps for the winter.

What a good feeling it has been to see the brown milo fields turn from a red-brown of ripened grain to a neutral gray after the grain has been harvested.

Most farmers have completed the small grain harvest except for the very wet spots that cannot be combined until the ground freezes. Day by day the corn harvest has progressed. Much of it is very wet and needs more maturity. The Farmer is waiting for ours to ripen in the field since he does not want to dry it this year. With the bulk of our harvest done, the forty acres of corn is not his main concern. Corn will stand up under some snow and wind . . . quite unlike milo and beans.

Winter is beginning to make itself known with its sharp winds and early darkness. It could scarcely make up its mind whether to walk boldly across the land last night or wait a bit longer. We had a little skiff of snow, a blast of chill wind and a cloud cover as we settled down for an evening by the fire last night. One never knows what to expect by morning at this time of year but to our surprise all we could see was the gray cloud cover. It continues to hover near the tops of the trees today as if it wants to wrap the world in a great gray blanket.

I would suspect that any morning we may awaken to a silent world of white. The weatherman continues to speak of snow. While the conditions for it are favorable, I would much sooner we would be spared the white stuff for a few weeks longer.

Last winter seemed so long because it began so early, or is it because I feel more housebound, for goodness knows I do not make snowballs any more or play fox and geese. I do not go out into the weather and I do not wish for the weather to come searching for me.

Let's See Action

Lincoln, Neb.

It is natural for a modern Democrat (e.g., Don Walton, Nov. 12) to be skeptical of some modern Republicans (e .g., Richard M. Nixon). In view of the present jiggery-pokery and tergiversations of the oil industry, it is still more natural for those of us who remember such eminent Republicans as Warren G. Harding, Harry Sinclair, E. C. Doheny, and Albert B. Fall.

In popular memory, the name "Teapot Dome" stands out, tending to eclipse the other half of the nefarious dealings of Interior Secretary Albert B. Fall. ("Nefarious" is a Latin word meaning, "It's your hard luck if you get caught.") Mr. Fall sold out the Elk Hills Naval Oil Reserve for $100,000; he was caught; the Supreme Court upheld on June 1, 1931, his conviction and he was duly jugged.

Almost exactly 50 years later, it is this same Elk Hills Reserve which Mr. Nixon proposes to open for exploitation. No responsible nor irresponsible official would now take $100,000. This would be pin money in a party which can raise some $60 million for one election campaign. No money changes hands; everything is above-board in the interests of national comfort, welfare and security (an auto-centered economy, electric appliances). But the result is the same: Elk Hills is opened for exploitation. If and when Elk Hills is leased, it may be interesting to see what company or companies get the lease.

Note also that the proposals for dealing with the "energy crisis" include fast work on the Alaska pipeline, easing of pollution controls, virtually unlimited strip-mining and more offshore drilling. (If you happen to own real estate in or near Santa Barbara, you should have sold it last Tuesday, 24 hours before the President's speech.)

I shall be a good deal more willing to believe in the reality of an "energy crisis" when there is a cutback in the promotion of semi-luxury current-using devices, such as electric shoe-polishers, tooth-brushes and can-openers. And when the gas companies find some means by which consumers may voluntarily shut off or turn down gas lights that burn 24 hours a day. I grant that in some neighborhoods, gas yard lights are needed because either the city or the real estate developers have been too thrifty to provide safe street lighting. And when the gas companies can provide or induce the manufacturers to provide kitchen stoves with fewer than five — count 'em, five — pilot lights.

If the energy crisis is real, let us hear some cries of cooperation from the gas, electric and oil companies. Let us see some belt-tightening on the part of fuel suppliers as well as on that of the more or less captive consumers.

Wants Example

Waverly, Neb.

On the front page of The Star of Nov. 7, there appeared an article stating that the President would speak that evening on the "very acute energy crisis" and "prospects for a cold winter." To the left of this article there appeared another on the upcoming 85-day space mission.

I think the government has some very badly misplaced priorities. I am the mother of a 14-month-old daughter. She spends much of each day playing on the floor. How can the government ask me and many others like me who have the young or the elderly in their homes to turn down the heat, while three astronauts float around earth in thermostatically controlled comfort for a good share of the winter?

I for one will NOT lower the temperature in my home until the people who represent this country show me more than verbal concern for this problem. How intelligent can they be if they didn't even realize there was a shortage until it was upon us? Whom are we to believe?

Let's hear it from the mothers of America!

Nebraska's Vote

Lincoln, Neb.

As so often happens, Nebraska's three congressmen again voted in favor of special interests and against the public interest. I refer to their vote Monday to delete from the Alaska Pipeline Bill a section (Title III) which would have strengthened the power of the Federal Trade Commission and other independent regulatory commissions like the Interstate Commerce Commission to gather data and operate in the public interest. Fortunately, this section was not deleted.

The section in question is complicated and technical, but it is designed to give the regulatory bodies more independence from the executive branch, especially with respect to their ability to conduct investigations into business practices and behavior that are not in the public interest. Over the years the independence of the regulatory commissions has been eroded, so much so that all too frequently they have become protectors of the industry they are supposed to regulate rather than protectors of the interests of the consumer.

The efforts of Congressmen Thone, Martin and McCollister to knock Title III out of the bill would have been another step in this unhappy direction.

The regents are a hangover from 17th Century Oxford and Cambridge, England. Their heads are on backwards and they maintain the mud-flats that are the educational scene. They are excess baggage.

Even Texas Running Short

HOUSTON — Gov. John Love, the President's energy assistant, is even gloomier in private than he is in public about the duration of the energy crisis. And even Texas is beginning to wonder about the future.

Governor Love has been down here talking to the oil producers and bankers, and instead of the 10% fuel shortage foreseen by the White House, he has been talking about a shortage of 15 to 19%. His concern now is not mainly about inconveniences to the American people through fuel rationing, but of serious effects on jobs, profits and the economy and unity of the nation.

Houston looks like an architect's model of the future, and this spectacular city was built on oil, but even Gov. Dolph Brisco was saying privately that even Texas would have to import oil and gas by the 80's — and when Texas runs short, the crisis is obviously real.

In fact, Love came down here to appeal for the understanding and support of the oil industry, and conceded that if the shortage is not managed well, "the result could be chaotic."

Love is particularly worried about the growth of "regionalism" — gas areas like Oklahoma resisting an equal distribution system nationwide; remote farm areas or regions with particularly severe weather being discriminated against — all this leading to more divisions within the country and even to black markets, and pay-offs to evade the coming regulations.

The objective of the Nixon energy policy, Love says, is to achieve the "capacity" for U.S. self-sufficiency. This does not mean that the United States should not import oil from the Middle East and elsewhere, he says, but that it should do everything possible to avoid having to rely on foreign supplies in the future.

☆ ☆ ☆

A vast education campaign is now on to persuade the American people that the crisis is not a temporary nuisance but a basic problem which will affect American ways of living and even American world military strategy for many years to come.

For example, the Pentagon fears that the rise of Soviet naval power and Soviet influence in the Mediterranean and the Indian Ocean could leave the United States vulnerable to a naval blockade of oil resources in the Middle East, and thus cripple U.S. defenses if we were relying on Middle East fuel we could not get.

It is, therefore, and has been for some time, a primary objective of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to achieve self-sufficiency in fuel at home, but it took the latest Middle East war and the ensuing embargo of substantial Middle East oil supplies to make the Nixon administration take emergency action.

Love says the administration misjudged the will and ability of the Middle East states to organize an embargo of oil to states favorable to Israel, but now he observes they have proved they can and will do it.

At the meetings of the American Petroleum Institute here, everybody seemed to agree that it would require great unity and cooperation by everyone concerned to deal with this situation, but as usual there is now a lot of scape-goating on the crisis.

Some people blame the petroleum industry for limiting supplies of fuel to increase profits, but the American Petroleum Institute insists its profits last year were less than 11%, while profits of all industry ran over 28%.

Others blamed the environmentalists for obstructing the development of new oil fields, new refineries, and atomic evergy plants. And the petroleum industry officials blame the government.

☆ ☆ ☆

While Love was blaming nobody in particular, Frank Ikard, president of the A.P.I., said the industry had been issuing warnings about the fuel shortage ever since 1954, when government price-fixing was imposed on the natural gas industry, but that most government officials had "their hearing aids turned off."

He also blamed tax changes in 1969 which reduced the depletion allowance percentage and siphoned off "hundreds of millions of dollars each year from further search for needed new petroleum reserves."

The petroleum industry says that instead of reducing dependence on foreign oil, the United States imported 31.4% more crude oil during the first 10 months of 1973 than in the same period of 1972.

Accordingly, an A.P.I. report stated, petroleum imports were exceeding six million barrels a day before the latest Middle East war, which was 35.4% of the 17.1 million barrels used in this country every day.

Both Love and the industry officials agree that it will take from three to five years to increase U.S. production of oil fuels "substantially" — and much longer to develop alternate supplies of nuclear, solar, thermal, and finally "fusion" power.

The outlook, then, is not for a short-term crisis but for a long-term adjustment to new and smaller cars, slower speeds and lower temperatures, higher prices, and intricate new negotiations to increase world production and spread the limited supplies equally both at home and abroad.

About the only man in Houston who seemed to have a simple solution was H.L. Hunt, the conservative independent oil producer. Liberate the independent producers, he suggested, then all would be well. But the others seemed much more gloomy, and Love, who has struggled with this problem when few other people were paying attention, looked as if he were having an energy crisis of his own.

Youth Charged In Boy's Slaying

. . . 17-Year-Old Omahan Held

Omaha (UPI) — Patrick Ronald Russell, 17, was arraigned Wednesday on a charge of first-degree murder in the death of Joseph Edmonds, 8.

Russell, who lived near the victim and knew him, was arrested shortly after the finding of Joseph's body late Tuesday by two patrolmen who had questioned him just hours earlier regarding an auto break-in.

The Edmonds boy's body was found in a vacant apartment about three blocks from his home. He had been strangled and beaten.

The finding of the body followed a search of three days. The boy disappeared about Saturday noon. A pathologist's report said death apparently came shortly after his disappearance.

Russell Released

The two patrolmen who questioned Russell Tuesday about the car break-in let the youth go upon the request of the car owner. However, they wrote down his name and confiscated a pocket knife.

Russell told one of the officers, James Abbott, that he had undergone psychiatric treatments.

When the officers heard about the finding of Joseph's body, they reported their earlier encounter with Russell to superiors and detectives went to his apartment and questioned him.

Douglas County Attorney Donald L. Knowles, who filed the first-degree murder charges, said information obtained in the questioning led him to make the charge first-degree. Young Russell was held without bond, following the brief court appearance.

Found By Caretaker

The body bore no outward sign of sexual assault. It was found by Mrs. Verna Kennelly, caretaker of the apartment building.

The body was found in the northwest corner of the basement apartment's bedroom. The three-room apartment had been vacant for about three weeks. The door had been forced open.

The suspect's mother, Mrs. Eva Marie Russell, told a reporter Tuesday that last summer she and Patrick and a 9-year-old son had lived across the street from the Edmonds family.

The reporter, Al Brisbie of the Omaha World-Herald, said Mrs. Russell permitted him to use her telephone to dictate details of the finding of the Edmonds boy's body. The call was made in the presence of Patrick Russell, Frisbie said. The youth was watching a television report of the finding of the body and glanced at the reporter only once, Frisbie said.

Frisbie said Mrs. Russell appeared deeply shocked at the tragic death of Joseph and commented to him, "sometimes, a person is almost afraid to step out their door at night."

An hour later, police came to her door and asked for Patrick.

Mortar Board Cites NU French Teacher

Mrs. Joyce Megay, a French instructor at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, has been named the first recipient of an "outstanding teacher of the month" award from the UNL chapter of Mortar Board.

Making the announcement was Mrs. Erna Todd, Mortar Board president. She said with the announcements each month Mortar Board hopes to recognize excellence in teaching at the university.

Mrs. Megay, who began her UNL teaching career 10 years ago, has been a full-time instructor since 1969. She did her undergraduate work in music, but was asked to teach French to fill in during an "emergency" at UNL.

Mrs. Megay's mother was French and most of her youth was spent in France.

She and her husband, E. N. Megay, lived in Hungary during World War II. And she has studied music in Vienna and New York. Her husband is a UNL political science professor.

"I can sympathize with my students in the difficulties in learning a language," said Mrs. Megay. "In Hungary, I had to start from scratch because Hungarian doesn't resemble anything I ever had."

The Megays have lived in the U.S. since 1946 and in Lincoln since 1962.

Mrs. Megay said she views foreign language as a means of awakening students to interests they otherwise might not have had. "It is like opening a window on a new horizon."

She received her masters degree from UNL in 1969 and is now working on a Ph.D. in French.

Fairbury, NPPD Sign Agreement

Fairbury (AP) — The Fairbury City Council has approved a resolution authorizing an electrical interconnection agreement with the Nebraska Public Power District. The 10-year agreement provides for the purchase of load growth power, emergency power and economy power. NPPD said the agreement is similar to one approved by Madison and Broken Bow earlier this year. Previously, Fairbury's electrical needs were supplied by the city's generating units and power from the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation.

SPUCC, Frontier Meeting Sought

Alma (AP) — The South Platte United Chambers of Commerce decided during a meeting here to seek a conference with A. L. Feldman, president of Frontier Airlines, concerning reduction of service to Nebraska cities. Robert Harris, SPUCC vice president, said the purpose of the meeting would be "not to criticize, but to discuss what we might do to help Frontier secure needed fuel supplies and to promote greater traffic for the airline in order to obtain better schedules." Harris said if Feldman accepts the invitation, a meeting will be held in December.

'Save Courthouse' Request Refused

Kearney (AP) — The Buffalo County Board has turned down by a 4-3 vote a request to save the 80-year-old courthouse. The vote was to put a tax levy request on the ballot in the 1974 general election. The levy would have been used to repair and maintain the building for use as a museum. In a letter, state Chief Deputy Fire Marshal Paul Thein said the building should be demolished and could not be approved as a museum because of structural cracks. After the vote was taken, Leonard Silver, president of the Buffalo County Historical Society, said the society will seek figures on the cost of renovating the structure to meet the fire safety codes.

Big Role Of Farmers Emphasized

Falls City (AP) — Gov. J. James Exon told 1,500 persons at the annual farmers-merchants banquet here Tuesday that "the only renewable source of energy that we have today is in the hands of our farmers." Exon said agriculture is "the only hope that our nation has to meet the challenge in the world." Exon said he believes food is the greatest bargain that Americans have. He also signed a proclamation allocating federal funds to the Richardson County chapter of the Alcohol Safety Action Program.

Dr. Eldridge Honored

The former director of resident instruction at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Agriculture, Dr. Franklin Eldridge, has been recognized for his 18 years of service to NU by the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges. Now serving as NU professor of animal science, Dr. Eldridge received the presentation from Dean Homer C. Regional SBA Default Record Said Good

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The regional director of the Small Business Administration said Wednesday that defaults on its loans in Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska are running less than half the national average.

Regional Director C. I. Moyer said the record is particularly good in view of ell the flood and tornado disaster loans made this year in the region.

He reported the SBA has loaned about $220 million in the four states, with a default rate of about 7 per cent. He estimated the regional office has approved $55 million in disaster loans this year and said normally they can be counted in the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Moyer's accounting was prompted by complaints about the Small Business Administration office at Richmond, Va. Sources in Congress have accused it of corruptly making many bad loans.

Prominent Auctioneer Avery Forke, 53, Dies

Avery Forke, a longtime Lincoln resident and nationally prominent auctioneer, died Wednesday, apparently after suffering a heart attack.

Mr. Forke, 53, was senior partner in the Forke Bros. Auctioneers Co., started in 1921 by Herbert D. and Al Forke.

Services for Mr. Forke will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday at Westminster Presbyterian Church. Dr. Robert Palmer will officiate.

Lincoln Fire Department officials were called to the Forke residence at 2645 Woodscrest Ave., at 9:50 a.m. Mr. Forke was taken to Bryan Memorial Hospital by the Bryan Mobile Heart Team and pronounced dead on arrival.

The Forke company specializes in the sale of heavy construction equipment.

The company has sold in nearly every state in the continental United States and in Canada.

Mr. Forke was a graduate of the University of Nebraska, where he was a member of Delta Upsilon Fraternity, drum major with the university band, member of the governing committee and managing editor of the Cornhusker yearbook.

He was a member of Westminster United Presbyterian Church, Masonic Faith Lodge AF & AM at Crawford, Scottish Rite, Shrine, Lincoln Country Club, University Club, Nebraska Club, American Legion Post No. 3, Eastern Star No. 307 and Lincoln Chamber of Commerce.

He was also board director at National Bank of Commerce and Security Mutual Life Insurance Co., member of the YMCA, Bryan Hospital Board and Cedars Home for Children Board of Trustees.

He is survived by widow, Dorothy; daughter, Mrs. Brent (Jean) Boerkircher of Lincoln, and brother, Dean of Lincoln.

Tripoli Gets Tough

Tripoli, Libya (AP) — Under a new law, motorists throwing cigarette butts out of cars can have their vehicles confiscated and their driving licenses withdrawn. The official news agency ARNA said the new law was in response to an "increasing disrespect" for traffic regulations.

The council advises the State Board of Health on licensing and regulation of nursing homes.

MIT Magnet To Be Used By UNL Men

Two solid state physicists at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Professor David J. Sellmyer and Dr. Frank R. Szofran, are performing experiments this week with the world's largest magnet.

The experiments are being done at the Francis Bitter National Magnet Laboratory, which is located at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, Mass. The magnet provides a continuous magnetic field of 225,000 Oersteds which, for comparison, is about 500,000 times larger than the earth's magnetic field.

The purpose of the experiments is to study the motions and velocities of electrons in solids. Such information is important for understanding the forces that hold matter together and for designing new materials with desirable electrical or magnetic properties.

The physicists also are presenting a paper at the Magnetism Conference in Boston this week.

Grange Policies For Law, Order

. . . Gun Controls Opposed

Opposition to legislation restricting ownership of weapons and support for stricter law enforcement were stands taken by National Grange delegates in policy-making sessions Tuesday.

The 76 voting delgates from 38 states, meeting in Lincoln from Nov. 12-20, also reaffirmed their policy opposing massive busing of school children for any purpose other than to achieve quality education.

Calling for reinstatement of capital punishment, with life imprisonment and no right of parole or pardon as an alternative, the Grange favored establishing more realistic rehabilitation programs such as week-end jail sentences for minor crimes.

Amnesty Opposed

In other resolutions the group expressed its opposition to amnesty for draft dodgers and deserters and to granting food stamps to strikers.

On the other hand, they adopted a resolution for continued support of the food stamp plan, urging that stamps be used for food only.

Vigorous enforcement of the anti-trust laws and others enacted for the protection of the competitive enterprise system and small business was called for by the delegates.

Grangers asked that in the area of vocational education, minimum guidelines for federal funding should be established to include the Future Farmers of America as an integral part of career-oriented programs.

Wednesday's convention program got started with a breakfast speech on financing the development of rural America by Joseph R. Hanson, assistant deputy administrator of the Farmers Home Administration.

Winners Listed

William J. Brake, lecturer of the National Grange, then announced the winners of the 1973 community service and beautification contests sponsored by the Grange.

Flora Grange, Ill., won top honors in the community service contest, followed by Granges in Volunteer, Tenn.; Kendrick, Idaho, and Fredonia, Mich.

Honorable mentions went to Los Alamos Grange, Calif.; Fruitland Grange, Del.; Tobacco Valley Grange, Mont., and Center Grange, Vt.

Beautification of a mile-long mall won first place in the "community more beautiful" contest for Avon Park Grange in Highland County, Fla.

Second and third place honors went to Old Richmond Grange, N.C., and Sandy River Grange, Maine. Glade Valley Grange, Md., and Flora Grange, Ill., received honorable mentions.

Californian Asks Court's Sympathy

Omaha (AP) — A California man, under indictment here for his part in an alleged scheme to falsify a death to collect $106,760 in insurance, asked the court for a little sympathy Wednesday: He wants to go to Monte Carlo.

Jimmie Lee Herron, in his mid 30s, explained to U.S. District Judge Robert V. Denney he won the trip in a sales contest back home. He said he couldn't go because his passport has been lifted because of the nine-count indictment.

To prove the trip was no excuse to slip out of the country, Herron's attorney handed Denney a brochure which showed a smiling Herron the recipient of a top prize awarded by a credit collection company he works for.

The request brought an attorney from the U.S. attorney's office quickly to his feet. "We have objections that they leave until this matter is solved," he said. "There are serious charges and a lot of money involved."

The attorney suggested Herron post a large bond if he were granted permission to retrieve the passport. But Herron's attorney said the Pleasanton, Calif., man couldn't afford the bond.

Denney took the request under advisement, saying, "I'll have to give this one some thought."

Herron and his wife, Pamela Ann, stood mute after the reading of the indictment. Denney entered an innocent plea for both.

James V. Kelley Jr., 26, Atlanta, pleaded innocent in the alleged plot in which it was claimed he was killed in a boating accident.

Kelley's 22-year-old wife, Marie, a native of Guam, also pleaded innocent.

According to the indictment, Mrs. Kelley reported the boating accident and "death" of her husband to island authorities, causing a water and air search.

The indictment claims that Kelley did not die and lived under the name of James D. Scott and had collected the money from United of Omaha.

Judge Denney said the four are to be tried in Omaha in March.

York Death In Road Toll

York (AP) — The death of a York man in a tractor accident will be counted against the state's traffic fatality toll.

The Patrol said it has since been determined that the accident occurred about 4 miles east and one-half mile south of York on a county road.

The State Patrol said Wednesday that previously it had been ruled that Earl F. English, 42, who died Oct. 7, met death on private property.

Platte Center Youth Is Killed In Gun Mishap

Platte Center (AP) — A 16-year-old Platte Center youth was accidentally shot to death Tuesday night about 7 miles north of Columbus.

The State Patrol identified the victim as Alan Bruesh. He suffered a 20 gauge shotgun wound in the chest as a result of a gun fired by a companion.

The Patrol said no charges would be filed.

Bank Requests Given Approval

State Banking Director Henry E. Ley reported Wednesday he has authorized the Fort Calhoun State Bank to engage in the banking business in Fort Calhoun.

Ley said also he has authorized the Bank of Papillion to establish a detached auxiliary teller's office at 102 Cory St. in Papillion.

Judge Is Indicted

New York (UPI) — Brooklyn Supreme Court Justice Dominic S. Rinaldi was indicted on charges of perjury and obstructing governmental administration.

Deputy Warden Tells Of Actions By Ralls

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Deputy Warden Robert Parratt, testifying in the first degree murder trial of Thomas Ralls said Wednesday that he saw Ralls hold a knife to the throat of a guard during a "rebellion" at the complex in 1970.

Under questioning from Lancaster County Deputy Atty. Ronald Lahners the deputy warden said Ralls and 12 other inmates held two guards hostage for 21 hours in the incident.

Ralls is charged with stabbing another inmate Irvin Cooper, 37, to death on April 20 in the kitchen area of the complex.

During his cross examination of Parratt, Lancaster County Public Defender Richard Goos produced a fake tinfoil "knife" which he said an inmate pulled from his sock while he was on the witness stand during the trial of an inmate charged in connection with the "rebellion."

Parratt, however, testified that the knife Ralls allegedly held in the incident was real and was not the tinfoil "knife" Goss was holding.

Earlier in the day Ralls took the witness stand and said that he and Cooper had been drinking together in the summer of 1969 or 1970 and that Cooper had pulled out a knife, held it at Ralls throat and forced him to commit a homosexual act.

Ralls said that he told Cooper "not to" and that he was crying at the time.

Ralls also said that Cooper had threatened him on several occasions, including one instance in which he said Cooper told him he was going to cut off his head and put it on the warden's desk.

Ralls also testified that he never told other inmates that he had to "eliminate" Cooper at the earliest possible opportunity, contradicting testimony given earlier in the trial by inmate Francis Wheelborg.

Ralls testified that there is "no way" he could have threatened other inmates not to testify in the trial because a guard is with him at all times.

Wheelborg, recalled to the witness stand by Lahners, said that since he testified in the trial he has been moved to the men's reformatory for his own protection, although the move was not made by his choice.

Wheelborg testified Monday that on the day Ralls was returned to the complex he heard Ralls ask other inmates for a knife and tell them he had to eliminate Cooper at the earliest opportunity.

At that time Wheelborg also testified that other inmates told him it would be "very unhealthy" to testify in the trial.

Nebraskans Sentenced In Pot Case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two Taylor, Neb., men were sentenced to jail terms Wednesday after being convicted on a charge of possessing marijuana with intent to distribute it.

Cecil Hawthorne, a rancher, was fined $2,500 and sentenced to 60 days in jail, probably in Nebraska. Tim Lucero, a former worker on Hawthorne's ranch, was sentenced to one year and one day in a jail not yet determined.

Technically, Lucero was to remain in the custody of the attorney general and could be released prior to the year-and-a-day sentence. At that time, he would begin two years parole.

U. S. Dist. Court Judge Irvin Hill had convicted the two Sept. 26 after their arrest and the confiscation of 175.78 kilograms of marijuana which the prosecution had said was grown in Nebraska, making it a federal case. Three other charges against them were dropped by the government.

Postage Hikes Hit

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Time magazine chairman Andrew Heiskell said proposed postage rate increases of about 25% would have a rippling, inflationary effect throughout the economy.

Gas Cost Up 70%

New Delhi, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government said it imposed a 70% rise in the consumer price of gasoline and similar hikes in the cost of other petroleum products because India lacks the administrative machinery for rationing. Petroleum Minister Dev Kant Borooah said one of the two was necessary because price boosts in crude oil on the world market had forced India to cut its consumption to conserve foreign exchange.

Ruling Hits Sierra Club Legal Fight

North Platte (AP) — The Sierra Club has been handed a setback in its legal battle to stop construction of the Gerald Gentleman power plant near Sutherland.

Lincoln County District Court Judge Hugh Stuart has sustained a demurrer filed by Nebraska Public Power District stating that the Sierra Club of California was not the real party in interest in a lawsuit filed earlier.

The original suit on which the demurrer is based sought an injunction against NPPD to halt construction of the power plant until the necessary air and water quality permits are obtained from the State Department of Envinonmental Control.

The judge said the Sierra Club can bring in another party to replace itself in the lawsuit or after a specified time he would dismiss the entire case.

Council, Mayor Pay Hikes OKd At Kearney

Kearney (AP) — The Kearney City. Council has voted to proceed with an ordinance raising the pay of councilmen to $1,500 per year and $1,800 for the mayor.

Councilmen now receive $200 per year and the mayor $300. If the ordinance is approved, it will be the first increase in 22 years.

The council also tabled a request from the Kearney Chamber of Commerce for a tax levy to provide the chamber with $12,000 annually.

Charlie Richardson, chamber president, said recent legislation permits a city to levy up to one mill for the purpose. He said it was in force in Grand Island, North Platte and Hastings.

Post To Knocke

Frank Knocke of Fairbury, former Jefferson County sheriff, was chosen secretary-treasurer of the Nebraska Sheriffs and Peace Officers Association during the group's meeting in Kearney this week.

An Associated Press story in The Star Wednesday carried the wrong name for the association's officer.

Downtown Has 'A Lot Going For It'

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Downtown Lincoln has "a lot of things going for it" which will help smooth the way in revitalizing the central business district, Lincoln Center Development Association (LCDA) members were told Wednesday.

Besides being the center of state government, the university and business, some $76 million worth of construction is planned or under way in the downtown area, planning consultant Robert Teska reported.

Teska, vice president of Barton-Aschman Associates, outlined his firm's plans to conduct an eight-month study of the central business district.

"One of our major efforts will be to take advantage of the opportunities which exist," Teska said.

He contended Lincoln has "not made some of the mistakes that other major cities have," nor has Lincoln had to contend with "some of the disruptive issues" faced by other metropolitan areas.

Stressing that the Chicago firm's emphasis will be on implementing recommendations, he said initial results may not be dramatic, but "will be at least meaningful."

Two initial projects which were labeled top priority by Teska include the City Service Building and the downtown repaving project.

Barton-Aschman associate John Lockner noted that final plans for the city services complex are not finalized, which will afford the consultants an opportunity to have input into the project.

In response to a question from LCDA member Paul Amen concerning the priority project list, Teska reported the firm is flexible and has left seven or eight "open" slots on that list so that projects can be named as the study progresses.

Although he admitted he does not know if changes in the CBD's traffic circulation patterns will be recommended, he quipped he "shed a tear" when he saw that the sidewalks and curbs are being constructed without room for trees or conduits for ornamental lighting.

The shopping center question also cropped up at the LCDA meeting.

Teska said based on current information he would be "very reluctant at this time to recommend that the city go ahead with one or more regional shopping centers."

"It is a marketing fact that any city can absorb only so many square feet of retail floor space," he said.

He pointed out, however, that the future strength of the CBD lies not in its retail sales volume alone, but in the downtown's attractiveness as a business and living center.

The consultants already have begun preliminary interviews with businessmen, government officials, investors and developers. More intensive interviews and field surveys will come later.

LCDA President Ron Tornblom told his fellow businessmen that the consultants would "rather have your suggestions now than your criticisms later."

LCDA showed their committment to the revitalization effort by authorizing a $17,000 expenditure for implementing programs under the direction of the Downtown Advisory Committee (DAC). DAC has been spearheading the study efforts.

Last week the City Council authorized $84,000 for the study itself.

The first phase of the study is scheduled to be completed by Christmas, the second phase by March 1 and the final report by July 1.

Man Charged With Taking Safe

Morris D. Combs, 39, of 3426 O, was charged in Lancaster County Court Wednesday with burglary in connection with an incident in which a safe was rolled from the office of the Ress Insurance Agency at 601 J and left battered, but unopened in a nearby parking lot.

Police said the door to the office was kicked open. The safe contained about $400, police said.

A preliminary hearing date for Combs was set for Nov. 29. Bond was set at $2,500.

Kearney Police OK FOP Lodge For Bargaining

KEARNEY, Neb. (AP)—By a 12 to 9 vote, Kearney police officers Wednesday approved the Fraternal Order of Police Lodge Number 5 as the bargaining agent for the department.

The election was held under jurisdiction of the State Court of Industrial Relations, which ordered the vote.

Jeff Jacobsen, legal counsel for the local FOP lodge, said a meeting of all Kearney policemen will be called soon to discuss further steps.

He said officers may approach either Chief of Police Dallas Samp, City Manager Ray Lundy or the City Council.

The city earlier had refused recognition of the union group, and the lodge then made the application with the state court.

Samp did not comment. Lundy said the city will consult with its legal counsel.

There were 23 eligible voters. Two officers were out of town and did not vote.

Earlier Furnace Ordering Sought

The Library Board authorized Director Charles Dalrymple Wednesday to seek the mayor's and City Council's approval in ordering heating equipment ahead of schedule for the main library.

Board members voiced concern that the energy crisis could delay shipment of an electric steam generator which will take over the library's heating job when steam-heat is discontinued in 1976.

Dalrymple reprted it could take one year between the time the equipment is ordered and when it is delivered.

He said the equipment would cost around $18,000 and could be housed within the library.

No funds for the heating equipment were appropriated by the council in this year's budget.

The board also decided to study various other mini-library sites other than one proposed in the Indian Hills area.

Dalrymple reported he has encountered some problems in locating a definite site for the mini-library in the Indian Hills shopping area and suggested that the West A and East O areas also be considered.

The council appropra'ed $25,000 for the project, which will place a portable library unit in a neighborhood area currently without branch library service.

In answer to a question from Councilman John Robinson, Dalrymple reported that he has assured Gene Wilczewski that a library facility in his proposed Highland development in Northwest Lincoln would be considered if the project is approved by the council.

Plaintiffs In VW Suit Settle For $15,000

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The plaintiffs have accepted a $15,000 out-of-court settlement and dropped their price fixing suit against Volkswegen, its American distributor and six dealers in the Kansas City metropolitan area.

A federal judge dismissed the suit Wednesday after ruling that the plaintiffs were not qualified to bring it as a class action because they did not adequately represent all Volkswagen owners in the country.

By terms of the settlement, they cannot press for further damages; but there is nothing to keep other Volkswagen owners from filing similar suits.

The plaintiffs were Patrick D. McAnany, a lawyer in Kansas City, Kan., and Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Ralston. Ralston is a law professor at Creighton University in Omaha, Neb. At the time the suit was filed in October of 1970 he was law clerk to Judge Elmo B. Hunter of the U.S. District Court for Western Missouri.

All of Judge Hunter's colleagues on the district bench disqualified themselves and the suit was transferred to Judge Warren K. Urbom, chief judge of the U.S. District court for Nebraska at Lincoln.

The plaintiffs alleged that Volkswagen Werke A. G. of Wolfsburg, Germany; Volkswagen Inc. of America of Englewood Cliffs, N.J., and the six dealers were engaged in a nationwide price fixing conspiracy on new Volkswagens. McAnany and the Ralstons had bought four of the cars between them.

Board Told Advertising For Bids Not Necessary

After being informed that it is legal to take bids without advertising for such bids for paving the parking lot south of the County-City Building, Lancaster County commissioners Wednesday approved proceeding with the project.

The board had delayed action Tuesday pending legal advice from County Attorney Paul Douglas on whether they could accept sealed quotations from the three firms which are the only firms in the county which contract for such work or whether the board would be forced to advertise for bids and delay construction.

The commissioners had noted Tuesday that it was hoped that the matter could be expedited before the weather would prevent completing the project this year.

Deadline for receiving the sealed quotations from the three contractors was set for 10 a.m. Nov. 20.

Special Manor Meeting Set By Advisory Board

The Lancaster Manor Advisory Board Wednesday scheduled a special meeting for next Monday for the purpose of hearing reports and making a recommendation to the County Board on architects for the next phase of remodeling of the nursing facility.

The board also expressed concern that the lunch costs for employes should be examined over the next three-month period to determine if the present lunch ticket method is satisfactory.

Several board members stated that they felt that this service should definitely be made available on a cost-only basis but that perhaps this cost should also include preparation costs as well as actual food costs.

It was reported that in light of the energy crisis, the heat has been truned down to between 66 and 68 degrees wherever possible in areas not occupied by residents and that reduced night lighting is being put into effect one hour earlier than previously.

Fender Bender Note Is No Help

Durban, South Africa (AP) — The Berea Rotary Club newsletter said a note was left under an auto windshield that read: "I have just run into your car. People have seen me and are watching me write this. They think I am leaving you my name and address. They are wrong."

Letters Fumigated

Mexico City (AP) — The Agriculture Ministry said it was fumigating letters, packages and grain shipments from countries where hoof-and-mouth disease exists, to prevent an outbreak of the infection.

Crete Man Gives Floodplain Views

By JOEL THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Crete — Having been left out of a flood control information meeting two weeks ago, Norman H. Behrens held a meeting of his own in this Big Blue River community Wednesday night.

A vocal advocate of floodplain zoning, Behrens showed aerial slides of last month's record flooding in Beatrice and De Witt and told some 45 persons "we've made a mistake" in settling in the Big Blue floodplain.

"Anyway we go, we're going to have to pay," Behrens said.

The alternatives, he said, include doing nothing and waiting for a similar flood to hit Crete, adopting floodplain zoning to "stop making our mistakes bigger," encircling the city with a dike and "forcing the water on all these farmers," and building upstream dams, both large and small.

Behrens said he views "holding the water where it lands" as the ultimate solution.

"But how can you tell a farmer in Seward County to dam his little slough?" Behrens said. "He doesn't care what happens down here when the river floods."

All the alternatives involve spending money, he said. "But there's nothing wrong with the river. It was here first. It's the men who don't want to admit they settled in the wrong place 100 years ago."

He said Crete's situation relative to the Big Blue and its tributaries is similar to that of Beatrice, including a narrowing of the river downstream which causes it to spread out through town during flood conditions.

But more of Crete is located in low-lying areas, Behrens said.

The town's power plant, utilities building, fire department, city hall, post office, school system and electric substation are located in what he understands to be the flood plain, Behrens said.

Behrens, a commercial photographer who has served as Crete Chamber of Commerce president and charter member of the Crete Planning Commission, is an executive board member of the Lower Big Blue Natural Resources District.

He said he was not invited to the other meeting, which was sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, run by the NRD and attended by the Planning Commission and City Council.

The reason he was not invited, Behrens claimed, it because he has "been riding the council for a floodplain study for years." He has been told that City Council members would have stayed away had he been present, he said.

Mayor Richard Buck and two planning commissioners attended Behrens' meeting which he had announced in a newspaper ad.

No City Council member was present. Behrens said he had invited them all personally.

Behrens said he was pleased with the turnout. "I honestly didn't expect more than 10," he said.

Ice Skating Increase Asked For Pershing

The Auditorium Board has agreed to look into the possibility of enlarging Pershing Municipal Auditorium's ice skating program following a request from Lincoln Figure Skating Club members and the City Recreation Department.

The board was told that many Lincoln ice skaters must go to Omaha to use ice skating facilities because of Lincoln's small skating program.

Members of the skating club contended that interest in skating is increasing, partially due to the creation of the University of Nebraska's ice hockey team.

Auditorium Manager Ike Hoig reported that the city loses money during ice skating sessions. He noted that $5,651 was lost last year and cited problems in preparing the rink for skating.

Hoig also said promoters of a recent ice hockey exhibition "probably lost a couple of thousand dollars" due to poor attendance.

He noted there are problems in preparing the auditorium for ice skating lessons. He said it costs around $1,000 to put up the rink and $216 to tear it down.

Board chairman Dick Chapin said it is difficult to schedule ice skating sessions when requests are made by larger moneymakers to rent the auditorium.

Donna Frohardt of the city Recreation Department recommended that admission prices to skating events be hiked in order to break even. Additionally, she said the auditorium could do a better job of announcing skating schedules and lessons.

Doctors To See Telecast About Tibetan Medicine

Lincoln General Hospital physicians will get a chance during coming days to pick up a tip or two from medical practices in Tibet.

The hospital is among 700 medical centers nationwide who will present the special closed-circuit telecast of "Tibetan Medicine: A 1,000-year-old Practice."

It includes some of the first videotapes ever made featuring the Tibetan culture and its ancient medical practices.

Ken Stevens, Lincoln General director of special services, said the program was made in cooperation with the Intercultural Medical and Social Study Group at the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond.

The program was produced by the Network for Continuing Medical Education.

It is scheduled for a two-week run, beginning Nov. 19, and will be seen simultaneously by about 100,000 physicians across the country.

The medical education network produces 69 new television programs yearly for use in major hospitals and medical centers.

Winter Driving Takes Caution, Knowledge

By GRACIA SIEB
Star Staff Writer

As winter progresses snow packs increase and temperatures continually drop. This may bring ideal conditions for those who enjoy winter sports such as skiing, sleddding and ice skating.

However, the stretch of winter months usually results in extended periods of hazardous driving which require extracautious motorists.

One of the most fundamental precautions a motorist can take is to have a car in good mechanical condition.

According to AAA Cornhusker Motor Club bulletins initial winterizing procedures should be taken in the fall and followup checks should be made periodically thoughout the cold weather season.

Among the items that should be checked by a qualified mechanic are the spark plugs, points, condenser, ignition system, automatic choke, cooling system including hoses and thermostat, battery and cables, brake adjustment and fluid, headlights, taillights and turn indicators, and exhaust system which should be free of leaks or obstructions.

Other mechanical precautions include making sure the heater and defroster are working properly, replacing worn windshield wiper blades and adding antifreeze solution to the automatic windshield washer reservoir, adjusting the steering tension, cleaning and adjusting rear view mirrors, lubricating moving parts to remove dust, dirt and moisture, replacing and adjusting pulley belts when necessary and making sure the horn is operating.

When traveling in winter weather, especially in areas where it is possible that blizzard conditions could develop, there are several items that can be carried in the car in preparation for blizzard emergencies.

For example, a small snow shovel or trenching tool might be invaluable when a driver becomes stuck in a snow drift.

Likewise, motorists can carry plastic bleach bottles or milk cartons filled with sand. These can be used to add weight to the rear of the car for better traction. Sand can be used in snow and on ice, and the cartons can be used for heat and light.

"If you are out for a long time, the cartons will burn and burn slowly," said Virgil Horne, consultant for physical education and safety for the Lincoln Public Schools.

"If you are caught out in a blizzard, stay with your car," he advised. "If worse comes to worse, you can always find things to burn in the car interior, such as the stuffing of the seats.

"Also, if you can't go anywhere, remove the hose from the windshield washer holding tank. Use the hose to siphon out some gas and put it on a tire. Fire from a tire gives off heat, a dark heavy smoke and a bright light.

"Always carry extra matches, a blanket and a flashlight. Also, make sure that your car is ready and that you have an adequate gas supply.

"Check the roads and weather conditions of the place you are going," Horne added. "In winter, if you are driving by yourself, let someone know what route you plan to take and if you have to change your plan of travel notify someone."

"Make sure that the speed limits are thrown out when the weather is bad," he said, suggesting that motorists should alter their speed according to the road conditions.

Other tips offered by a pamphlet, entitled "Traffic Emergencies — Prepare for Them" and prepared by the AAA Cornhusker Motor Club, includes a car kit for winter travel which should contain, candles and a two or three pound can for a candle heat stove; two blankets, a few newspapers; a supply of matches; dry clothing such as caps, gloves and thermal underwear; food such as candy bars; transistor or car radio; overshoes and shovel; and a box of tissues.

"If you're caught in a blizzard, protect yourself against suffocation," the bulletin states. "If you must run car, do so for only short periods and make sure exhaust is not plugged. This allows the carbon monoxide to be vented away from the car.

"Be on the lookout for snow drifting over the top of the car and shutting off air.

"Cover yourself to maintain body warmth. Newspapers or seat covers may be of benefit. Floor carpeting might also be used."

"Your staying with the car depends on distance to help," the report continues. "It is probably better to stay with the car if you are not capable of living with the hazards of a blizzard. In most cases snowplows or highway patrols will be along within a short time after the blizzard has subsided.

"Sit on feet and hands if they get extremely cold.

"The headlight should be unscrewed and pointed upward as a source of signal light. The rear view mirror or a shiny hub cap can also be used for a signal during daylight if the sun is shining.

"Above all, stay calm. Fright or overexertion can be extremely serious for the cardiac patient."

While driving during the winter months, motorist should wear leather gloves or gloves with suede palms for a firm grip on the steering wheel.

"Snow glare is the worst sight hazard," Horne noted. "Motorists should get a good pair of Polaroid sunglasses."

"Always use the low beams in fog, snow and rain," commented Robert L. Clarke of the AAA Cornhusker Motor Club. "The high beam causes a mirror effect."

"For additional traction, car owners can put weight on the seat in front of the back tires," Horne pointed out. "But remember too much weight in the trunk can cause steering hazards and raise the direction of the head lamps."

"Most of all, on snow and ice everything — stopping, starting and turning — must be gradual," emphasized Horne.

Various actions — abrupt turns, sudden lane changes or hard braking — can and often will result in a dangerous skid, especially on wet and icy roads.

Motorists are cautioned that if the rear of the car starts to slide, they should remove their foot from the accelerator immediately.

Although one's first instinct may be to turn hard away from the direction of the skid, drivers are reminded instead to turn cautiously the wheels in the same direction the rear of the car is skidding.

Never hit the brakes during a side skid correction, and for the fastest stop with the least chance of causing a side skid, pump your brakes hard and rapidly.

Is He A Cuckold Or Old Kook?

DEAR ABBY: I write a syndicated newspaper column titled "Bernstein on Words." Recently I received the following letter:

"Dear Mr. Bernstein:

While celebrating my 45th wedding anniversary, I recalled that 40 years ago my wife had an affair with another man. My question: Was I, or am I a cuckold?"

Abby, all that came to my mind was that juvenile jingle, "How much wood would a woodchuck chuck if a woodchuck could chuck wood," with a variation something like, "Just how old is an olden cluck when an olden cuckold's he?"

However, since this question seems much more up your alley than mine, how would you answer it?

TED BERNSTEIN:
CONSULTING EDITOR,
NEW YORK TIMES

DEAR TED: If the wife had only one affair — even briefly — her mate was a cuckold briefly. If she had another one, he's a cuckold for sure. If she's had them off and on over the years, he's not a cuckold — quite the reverse. He's an old kook!

DEAR ABBY: My problem is nothing new. It's my mother in law. My husband and I are the proud parents of a new baby, and I have returned to work part-time. Since we didn't know a reliable sitter, I asked my mother in law if she would babysit while I worked half days, and I offered to pay her. To my surprise, she accepted!

Abby, most grandmothers would be insulted if they were offered money to stay with their grandchildren. This is her first grandchild.

My husband and I have been fighting about this ever since it came up, and he says I am wrong — and if I don't feel right handing his mother money, I should just stick it in her purse and not make a big deal out of it.

Abby, do you think I'm wrong? I wonder just how many grandmothers accept money for taking care of their grandchildren?

WORKING MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: You failed to mention an important factor. How well off is your mother in law? If she must work in order to support herself, obviously she can't afford to sit gratis. In any case, you'd have to pay another sitter, so why gripe?

DEAR ABBY: I recently attended the funeral of my best friend, and I have never been so appalled in my life!

A distant relative of the deceased brought an oil painting of her three children to the funeral. It was in an ornate frame, and so huge she had difficulty carrying it.

She went around showing the painting to everyone. Several people acted disgusted but no one said anything. It appeared that the only reason this woman came to the funeral was to show off the picture.

Would you say she was out of line? And shouldn't someone have told her so?

WAS THERE IN S. C.

DEAR WAS: She was definitely out of line. But I doubt if anything said to one so obviously insensitive would have penetrated.

Opening lead - two of hearts.

Assume you're in three notrump and West leads the deuce of hearts. You win with the ten and see there are only six tricks you can take at once.

You can try for the other three tricks in two ways. (Remember that you don't see the East-West hands.) One is to lead the queen of diamonds and finesse, in which case you make nine tricks if West has the king. The other way is to force out the ace of spades, in which case you make nine tricks provided West started with only four hearts.

Your decision is crucial. If you try the diamond finesse and it loses, you are sure to go down even if West has only four hearts (you would lose three hearts, a diamond and a spade). But if you lead a spade and West has only four hearts, you will make the contract (you would lose three hearts and a spade).

How do you decide what to do? The answer is that if West religiously leads his fourth-best card, you should attack spades and shun the diamond finesse. West, in such case, would have to pay for his zeal about fourth-best leads and you would make three notrump.

But what if West is a player who, on occasion, leads fifth best from a long suit? In that event you would have a tough decision to make and be forced to rely entirely on your instinct.

In the actual hand, South attacked spades and went down — when he could have made the contract by relying on a diamond finesse. It turned out that West, though habitually a fourth-best leader, in the present case was clever enough to realize that his partner had absolutely no values — and that only the declarer could be fooled by a fifth-best lead.

"Burr," An Historical Novel

"History is the least popular of fifty subjects listed in a recent national high school poll. But what kid could enjoy the endless Mount Rushmores carved in soft soap our schools present them with?"

That, friends, is Gore Vidal's assessment — rendered on the occasion of the publication of his latest book, "Burr" (Random House), an historical novel — of the manner in which school children across the United States are taught the history of their country. And anyone who has suffered through a high school American history course (taught by a basketball coach who wandered into social sciences in college because that particular major looked easiest), and then gone on to study history in a more professional fashion cannot help but applaud Vidal for his candidness.

There they sit (we sat) in the classroom, victims of the local school board and prevailing opinion, learning about Washington the general; Jefferson, the civil libertarian; Jackson the Great Leveller; Lincoln the Great Emancipator, Teddy Roosevelt the trust-buster. All of them — seated now upon ethereal thrones of righteousness; frozen forever in the image of the DAR and the American Legion.

Horsefeathers!

There's always another side of the coin; and often a very convincing one, at that. But somehow that knowledge seldom seems to trickle down into the public schools.

And so, to millions of Americans, history is boring (mummified demi-gods do not retain their appeal; memorization of trivia soon wears thin); dead; to be avoided at all costs.

Or, even worse, for some, it attains the level of the sacrosanct — a body of knowledge that must be accepted, never questioned.

Then along comes someone like Vidal and puts the axe to all this. Not that others haven't done it before him. For some time now, there has been a school of revisionist historians who have — some convincingly, some less so — challenged the myths.

But again a communications problem exists. Few laymen have the desire (due to their earlier indoctrination) or the time to read what professional historians have said.

If for this reason alone, Vidal, in writing "Burr," has rendered a service. He has made history palatable to the layman (one feels the professionals wince, but there is something to be said for this). In addition, he has brought to light some very significant questions.

Vidal's latest literary endeavor is concerned with the infamous Aaron Burr — the traditional arch-villain, slayer of Alexander Hamilton, traitorous instigator of an alleged plot to dismember the United States.

Of his approach to the subject — an historical novel as opposed to straight history — Vidal says: "To me, the attraction of the historical novel is that one can be as meticulous (or as careless!) as the historian and yet reserve the right not only to rearrange events but, most important, to attribute motive — something the conscientious historian or biographer ought never to do."

It must be noted that Vidal appears to have done his homework. In addition to his own reasearch, the author notes that "my publisher nicley (nervously?) put two historical reasearchers onto the book . . ."

And although, in his "Afterward," he admits to several instances of rearrangement, he has stated in a PR release "I never ascribe to any actual figure views he did not hold."

His story — Burr's story — is told through the vehicle of a narrator — a young lawyer-journalist to whom Burr (aged 77 at the time of the story) is dictating his memoirs.

And some memoirs they are! Speaking through his young protege, Burr recalls his impressions of all the major figures and events of the Revolutionary and post-Revolutionary period.

Few come off smelling of roses — only Madison and Jackson, really. (Incidentally, Vidal has admitted no fondess for Jackson.)

The rest are protrayed in less than generous terms by the aging Burr.

A man of great military ability, Burr describes Washington as a terrible general: "Ultimately, I think, he must be judged as an excellent politician who had no gift for warfare. History, as usual, has got it all backward . . . Although the war dragged on year after year due to his eerie incompetence, I suspect that the kind of victory he did achieve could only have been the work of a man who combined resolute courage with a total absence of imagination."

And, revealing his (Vidalian?) philosophy of history, Burr says: ". . . despite his incompetence, the gods always supported him in the end. I suspect Cromwell was right: the man who does not know where he's going goes farthest."

He found Jefferson to be the archetypical hypocrite: "He was the most charming man I have ever known, as well as the most deceitful. Were the philosopher's charm less, the politican's deceit might not have been so shocking."

To some extent Burr expresses admiration for his long-time enemy, Hamilton — a man who he found, although ambitious, more honorable than Jefferson.

The picture he paints of Revolutionary America is intriguing: "The rich tended to be pro-British while the poor were not interested in whether or not American merchants paid taxes to a far-away island. The truth is that except for a handful of ambitious lawyers, there were very few 'patriots' in 1775. By the time the long deadly war came to an end, there were hardly any to be found. The best died; the rest grew weary."

About the worst that can be said of Burr, on the basis of Vidal's book, is that he suffered from delusions of grandeur and an inability to handle money.

As Burr tells it, he was victimized by history and the machinations of men like Jefferson (Jefferson, he says, knew the rumor that he was about to take over the western U.S. was nonsense).

Upon visiting the site where he mortally wounded Hamilton in a duel — an affair of honor — Burr further remarks: "You know, I made Hamilton a giant by killing him. If he had lived, he would have continued his decline. He would have been quite forgotten by now. Like me . . . While that might have been my monument up there, all scribbled over.'"

Vidal's narrative is superbly, and, in many cases, cleverly done. The transitions between the story-line and Burr's tale as he recounts it in his dictated memoirs, are accomplished smoothly. And this technique of ranging backward and forward in time serves to allay the boredom that is often a part of a chronological historical narrative.

The characters come alive through Burr's perspective. In this resepct, Vidal has learned to use the historical novel to its best advantage.

Vidal may, perhaps, be faulted for not including footnotes or a bibliography, both of which would lend credence to his book. But that just might put many readers off.

"Burr" will, hopefully, be read by many, many people. Not because it is necessarily a true or accurate picture. There exist more scholarly treatises that undoubtedly carry more authority by virtue of their professionalism.

But Vidal has created a supremely readable book that will be widely enjoyed outside that privileged circle of professional historians.

And maybe, by virtue of that fact, some, after reading "Burr" will be convinced that history is far from dull. Maybe they will be compelled to consult some of those more scholarly treatises to find out how good a job Vidal has done. And perhaps, in the process, they will confirm for themselves what Vidal already knows — that things are not always what we learn them to be.

Cengas Asks Customers To Reduce Thermostats

Cengas officials urged customers Wednesday to turn down thermostats and install proper insulation in homes to help conserve natural gas.

Glenn Bonacker, vice president for gas operations, announced during a press conference that residential users could save an estimate 3% in natural gas by turning down the thermostat to 68 degrees.

Bonacker also urged Lincolnites to install proper insulation which in a previously noninsulated home could result in a 20% savings, he said.

By cutting back the demand for natural gas, he said fuel could be saved for schools and other large users which are on interruptable service.

"Any savings we make will help," he stated.

Bonacker said he did not forsee the rationing of natural gas as a possibility as long as Cengas' two major suppliers, Northern Natural Gas and Kansas-Nebraska, continue "to agressively look for gas."

However, he said if the shortage of natural gas reaches the critical stage, it may become necessary to deny service to new customers.

Cengas advertising will continue, he reported, but the emphasis will be switched to using natural gas efficiently.

Citizens living in the some 72,000 homes served by the utility in the eastern third of the state and in southeast South Dakota will be urged to cut down on their use of natural gas until additional supplies can be found.

He noted there are natural gas reserves along with oil on Alaska's northern slope. The opening up of those oil reserves with the construction of the Awaskan pipeline will also open up the gas reserves, he said.

Baby Is Injured In 2-Car Crash

A 7-month-old baby was listed in "satisfactory" condition at Lincoln General Hospital following a two-car accident on Van Dorn between 16th and 17th Wednesday afternoon, according to police officer J. J. Miller.

Miller said Russell Healey, son of June Healey, of 1125 Stillwater, suffered a skull fracture, when the Healey car was in collision with a car driven by Norman Atkins, 52, of 5536 S. 42nd.

Mrs. Healey was treated for minor injuries and released.

Smart Stresses Need For Adequate Housing

By JIM DeCAMP
Star Staff Writer

"No single element of life affects individuals as much as housing," according to Walter L. Smart, executive director of the National Federation of Settlements.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Malone Community Center, Smart said a person's house is the place where "one wakes, sleeps and eats, where families come together, where children play and grow."

Smart said, "the shabbiness of life in slum areas is heightened by deteriorating housing in decaying neighborhoods, adding that poor housing dehumanizes and often destroys the people who have to live there."

"There have been a number of well designed programs for youth," Smart said, "but these programs have failed because of the overwhelming influence of the home."

Smart said, "the settlement or neighborhood center has two primary roles: one of providing certain necessary services to the people within its service area; and one of bringing to the attention of the larger community the continued existence of certain social and economic problems and their consequences."

"The solution to these problems cannot be found in one neighborhood or even one state, but the federal government must be involved," he said.

Speaking of housing programs eliminated by President Nixon, Smart said, "These were hard won battles dating back to 1935."

Nixon has proposed that housing allowances be given to qualified people, but Smart doesn't agree that such a program will work.

He told the group that housing allowances have not worked in other areas because discrimination forces the people back to the slum.

Smart said, "the settlement movement began as an effort to reform an inhumane industrial society whose evils showed up most clearly in city slums, but settlements have been forced to change with the times."

He said, "that among the pressures forcing the change are rapid rebuilding and competition for the welfare dollar."

Smart said, "the uprooting of a population to make way for highway or slum clearance has forced settlements to re-evaluate services and since settlements are usually located in disadvantaged areas their fate has been tied heavily to the United Way."

"Budget committees have been confused by the apparently contradictory interpretation made by individual settlements," he said, "but this is often due to the variety and flexibility of programs which ought to be considered an asset."

Smart said, "the programs develop differently because of different neighborhood needs, but they still have to be interpreted as part of a general neighborhood approach."

In the midst of a controversy over who was eligible for election, 10 new members were added to the Malone Center board of directors.

The debate developed when Malone board president, Mrs. Gladys McField, ruled that Mrs. Betty Gant was not eligible to serve on the board because she is an employe of the Lincoln Action Program (LAP), the parent agency of the Malone Center.

Mrs. McField said it was stated in the contract that no employe of the parent agency could serve on the board of directors of the delegate agency.

Lana Balka, executive director of LAP said there was no such provision in the contract.

The new board members are: Lenora Letcher, Nathaniel Livingston, James Smith III and Mary Thelmon for three year terms; and Kevin Anderson, Don King, Joyce Smith, Pat Johnson, Mercedes McLeod, and Roger Elliot to fill unexpired one year terms.

Aid Accord Reached

Washington (UPI) — House and Senate conferees agreed Wednesday on a $2.4 billion economic and military aid program for 1974, including up to $650 million for arms assistance to Israel and Cambodia.

The final figure was almost $400 million less than President Nixon's original request and was reached after 2½ days of intense bargaining between members of the House Foreign Affairs and Senate Foreign Relations Committees.

Rep. Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., chairman of the House committee, said the aid measure would be presented for final congressional action shortly after the Thanksgiving recess.

The measure includes $300 million for arms aid to Israel and up to $350 million for Cambodia. The Cambodian figure includes an extra $200 million to fill President Nixon's recent request for extra arms money for that country.

The conferees slashed $128 million from the administration request of $632 million for postwar aid to Indochina. That could deepen South Vietnam's already serious economic troubles, but State Department sources thought enough money was left to avoid a disaster.

Other provisions included:

—Retention of a Senate amendment that prohibits aid funds from being spent on abortion programs.

—Renewal of a ban on aid to countries that expropriate U.S. private property without compensation.

—Restoration of funds for the Asian Development Bank.

—Elimination of a ban on aid to India unless U.S. counterpart funds in that country are released.

Denver-Omaha Flights To Be Reduced By 18

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two airlines said Wednesday they have agreed to eliminate 18 flights each week between Denver and Omaha, Neb., and six flights each week between Denver and Las Vegas.

United Air Lines said it had agreed to reduce six round trip flights each week in the Denver-Omaha market and one round trip each week between Denver and Las Vegas.

Frontier Airlines agreed to eliminate three round trips each week between Denver and Omaha and two weekly round trips between Denver and Las Vegas.

The agreements are scheduled to go into effect, if the Civil Aeronautics Board approves, on Jan. 7. They will extend through April 28.

The talks between the two airlines were authorized by the CAB in an effort to reduce airline consumption of fuel during the current energy crisis.

NWU's Greeno Comeback Master

When it comes to rallying to win Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference titles, Nebraska Wesleyan's Woody Greeno has proven he's a master.

Greeno's Plainsmen went into the fifth annual NIAC cross country meet expected to do no better than third behind Doane and Concordia, who had each won two conference harrier titles.

And it wasn't until the last hill that NWU was in position to actually win the meet.

On that hill the Plainsmen's Dave Soper passed Concordia's fourth and fifth runners to clinch the meet. Soper, only a freshman, ran a lifetime best as four other NWU runners did that day.

Actually Soper, from Bedford, Mass., didn't place in the meet because he was the Capital City team's sixth runner and only five counted, but his passing the two Concordia runners sealed his team's win.

Duane Coates, a Creighton freshman, was the Plainsmen's fifth runner. The other NWU runners, who placed, are all lettermen.

Omaha junior Joe Neneman was the fourth Plainsman runner, Hastings senior Andy Aiken third, Wahoo junior Jim French second and Lincoln Junior Cliff Karthauser first.

Karthauser (second), French (fifth) and Aiken (sixth) all won individual medals for their high finish besides helping Greeno take home his first NIAC cross country trophy.

The finish of Karthauser was about the only one that went according to form, although French, Aiken and Neneman didn't surprise Greeno too much.

French Late Developer

"Jim really developed late last year and did well in the conference meet, so we expected him to do the same this season," Woody said.

"Andy came to classes this fall with an injury and it took time for him to heal, but we also expected him to do well and Joe had a bad showing at last year's conference and wanted to make up for it this year."

However, the placing of Soper and Coates was a surprise, something Greeno takes a lot of pride in telling why.

"We just tried to improve a little each week and peak at the conference meet," Greeno said. "After all it's the conference that really counts."

The best Greeno's runners had finished at any invitational this fall was third behind Doane and Concordia and even the NWU coach and athletic director thought third place for his team was reasonable to expect.

"We looked like a third-place team going into the meet, but our kids are a bunch of competitors and aren't the kind to quit," he said. "They just went out and got the job done."

And that's pretty much the same basis for the reason NWU has also won the last three NIAC track titles. The Plainsmen have come through with some clutch performances at those meets to rally and win the conference title for Greeno.

Woody added another honor when Karthauser finished sixth at the NCAA Division III cross country meet to become the first NWU cross country all-American.

Karthauser, a Lincoln Northeast graduate, was second about three-fourths of a mile from the finish. However he developed a sideache, which has plagued him in cold weather throughout his career and he was forced to slow down in order to finish.

Carlson's Prep Playoff Plan Has Benefits

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer

One wouldn't even have to be a staunch prep football fan to appreciate a matchup between Lincoln East and Bellevue or Lincoln Pius X and Lexington.

If that doesn't interest the smaller school fans, would a battle between Class C unbeatens St. Edward and Plainview? Or Nebraska City Lourdes and Wolbach in Class D? Or Hampton and Cedar Bluffs in eight-man?

Such prospects would materialize if Nebraska adopted the high school football playoff plan submitted to the Nebraska School Activities Association (NSAA) last summer by Lewiston coach Randy Carlson.

NSAA assistant executive secretary Jim Riley incorporated Carlson's point system into his own unofficial ratings service this fall.

And, here's the four mythical champions which would emerge from each district in each class, according to Riley:

Class A — Bellevue, Creighton Prep, North Platte, Lincoln East.

Class B — Lexington, Lincoln Pius X, Blair, Columbus Scotus.

Class C — Plainview, Dodge, St. Edward, Arapahoe.

Class D — Callaway, Wolbach, Nebraska City Lourdes, Orchard.

Eight-man — Bartlett, Paxton, Hampton, Cedar Bluffs.

Carlson's proposed plan incorporates what he believes are the best features of playoffs being used in Iowa and Kansas.

Basically, a team with the highest point average in each district would qualify for a 4-team playoff in each class. Points are awarded for beating, losing to or tying with teams either above .500 or .500 and below.

More points are awarded for playing teams above classification and less points are credited for playing below classification. Bonus points are awarded for finishing unbeaten and untied for seven, eight and nine games.

The biggest flaw in the point system, Riley believes, is not enough disparity in point values for playing above or below a team's classification.

"We'd have to make a greater spread or impose a bigger point penalty for teams going down a class to play," Riley says. "And I think we'd also have to assign more points for defeating a team with a winning record."

A flaw in the point system can be traced to this example: Lexington is awarded five more points (50) for beating a winning team in its own class like Ogallala (6-4) than Pius X is awarded for defeating a Class A team such as Lincoln Southeast, which is considered a "second division" team with a 4-4-1 record.

In Class D district II, Riley noted that unbeaten Wolbach and twice-beaten Ansley both averaged the same number of points (45.00). But Wolbach won the tie-breaker proposed in Carlson's plan, getting five points for the most wins and five more for the least number of losses.

Perhaps the biggest surprise among the entire compilations was Arapahoe being declared winner in Class C-4.

The Nos. 4 and 5 teams in that district, based on point values, are Bassett and Grant, both of which rank among the top five in the Sunday Journal and Star ratings.

The NSAA is expected to start formulating a playoff plan Dec. 5 at a meeting in Kearney. It would be submitted to the NSAA Representative Assembly, the organization's governing body, for consideration next April.

Here's the leading contenders and their point averages in each district of Carlson's proposed playoff plan:

Class A

Metro area — Bellevue, 43.33; Creighton Prep, 43.33; Omaha South, 41.11; Omaha Benson, 40.0.
At large — North Platte, 42.50; Lincoln East, 41.66; Grand Island, 39.00; Lincoln Northeast, 37.77.

Class B

District I — Blair, 46 60; Platteview, 45.00; Omaha Gross, 43.33.
District II — Lincoln Pius X, 47.12; Fairbury, 46.6; Centennial, 39 44; Norris, 38.88.
District III — Columbus Scotus, 43.88; Schuyler, 43.30; Columbus Lakeview, 38.33.
District IV — Lexington, 49.50; Cozad, 39.50; Chadron, 38.80.

Class C

District I — Dodge, 47.50; (Meridian and Louisville closest challengers, but far off the pace).
District II — St. Edward, 46.10; Sutton, 42.33; Ravenna, 41.66.
District III — Plainview, 50.50 (West Point second, but far off pace).
District IV — Arapahoe, 44.55; Hay Springs, 43.88 (doesn't count playoff loss to Morrill); Morrill, 41.87; Bassett, 41.25; Grant, 41.00.

Class D

District I — Nebraska City Lourdes, 45.55; Polk, 43.12; Falls City Sacred Heart, 42.50.
District II — Wolbach, 46.25; Ansley, 45.00; Hildreth, 40.62.
District III — Orchard, 42 77; Beemer, 41.87; Newcastle, 41 00.
District IV — Callaway, 46.66; Lyman, 45.10; Gurley, 41.25.

Eight-Man

District I — Hampton, 47.22; Bruning, 46.88; McCool Junction, 44.66; Adams, 41.10; Dawson-Verdon, 41.10.
District II — Cedar Bluffs, 47.22 (clear-cut winner over otherwise tightly-bunched field).
District III — Bartlett, 49.37; Bartley, 47.22; Farnam, 42.50.
District IV — Paxton, 48.33; Wheatland, 43.33.

WATSON CAPTURES LEAD

. . . Record Equalled At World Open

PINEHURST, N.C. (UPI) — Young Tom Watson, whose words of prophecy may be worth $100,000 to him, closed with an eagle and four birdies for a record-equalling, nine-under-par 62 Wednesday that gave him an incredible sixstroke lead over Gibby Gilbert after the fifth round of the marathon $500,000 World Open golf championship.

The 62, giving Watson a 347 total for 90 holes, equalled the course record for the 7,007-yard No. 2 course of the Pinehurs Country Club which was set by Gilbert only last Thursday in the opening round of this world's richest golf tournament. For his round, Watson had a total of eight birdies and an eagle against one bogey.

"On No. 14 I holed an eight-iron shot from 148 yards for my eagle," said Watson. "From then on I played sort of in a daze. I felt I could make anything then."

Watson's third consecutive sub-par round climaxed a blistering comeback after he had quickly fallen 12 shots off the pace following last Friday's second round. At that point, the 23-year-old psychology graduate predicted, "Anybody 10 shots off the lead can come back and win. All they have to do is shoot two or three sub-par rounds."

A tour sophomore who has yet to win, Watson did it all in virtually one torrid stretch when he followed his only bogey of the day on the 13th with an eagle on the 438-yard, par-four 14th and four consecutive birdies.

Gilber, meanwhile, was giving the youngster some added help when he suddenly blew up on the back nine. Gilbert started the day very strong, getting an eagle on the fourth hole to go six-under-par for the tournament. At that stage, he commanded a five-stroke advantage over Watson.

Gilbert didn't appear too concerned when he gave one stroke back with a bogey in the sixth hole and he reached the turn five-under. But then he bogeyed the 12th, 14th and 15th holes before recovering slightly with a birdie on the 16th to finish at 353.

"I hit some bad shots," Gilbert said. "I had some bad putts, some bad chips. You don't like to be six behind, but there's still plenty of room left. I still have a chance to win and I haven't given up."

Miller Barber, with a 67, and Bobby Mitchell, with a 69, shared third place at 356, nine strokes off the pace, and another stroke farther back was Jerry Heard following a 70. Al Geiberger, who was tied for second place with Watson at the midway point of the eightround marahon, faded to a 74 to fall into a sixth-place deadlock with Len Thompson at 359. Thompson shot 69 Wednesday.

Allen Miller, who had shared the third-round lead with Gilbert, had a 74 for a 360 total, leaving him tied with Gay Brewer, Chi Chi Rodriguez, Homero Blancas and Bob Dickson. Gary Player, a pre-tournament favorite, shot 70 to stand at 363 and Arnold Palmer was at 368 following a 73.

Watson, whose pretty, dark-haired bride of four months, Linda, followed him around the course, started his record surge with birdie putts of 12 feet on the second hole, 20 feet on the fourth, seven feet on the eighth and 12 feet on the 10th.

He had his lone setback on the 375-yard, par-four 13th when he three-putted from 35 fee out for a bogey, but he quickly put this out of his mind with the eagle on No. 14. Then he followed with birdies on the last four holes on putts of 10, 1, 20 and 14 feet.

"I don't think you can explain a round like this," said the Kansas City, Mo., native, who went to school at Stanford. "You just get a feeling and everyting starts going right. This is the best round I ever had."

Watson said he felt confident all day and "I just seemed to have it. Now I hope I can hold the lead. I had the lead in Hawaii but choked and blew it. I hope I learned something from that."

In the Hawaiian Open early this year, Watson led after both the second and third rounds but lost by four shots to John Schlee.

'Long' Record Turns Out 'Short'

PINEHURST, N.C. (UPI) — Not only did Gibby Gilbert lose his lead to Tom Watson Wednesday in the $500,000 World Open Golf Championship, but he's going to have to make room for the youngster in the Hall of Fame.

Just a day earlier, Gilbert had made a tape recording describing how he shot his opening round 62 last Thursday, the lowest score ever registerd on the Pinehurst Country Club's No. 2 course.

"I commented on the tape that the record wouldn't be equalled for 50 years," said John Derr, a nationally-known sportscaster and the executive vice president of the Hall of Fame, which is under construction here. "It didn't even last 50 hours."

On Wednesday, Watson equalled Gilbert's 62 and Derr said he already has made a date with Watson to describe his round for posterity. The two scorecards, Derr said, will be framed and hung side by side when the building is completed.

Cipriano Says NU 'Flexible'

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

With youth dominating his roster, Nebraska basketball coach Joe Cipriano knew flexibility would be of the essence in early practices.

Seven of the 15 Huskers are freshmen who first began practices together on Oct. 15. Faced with hosting the Yugoslavia National Team Tuesday at the Coliseum, Cipriano describes his team as still needing considerable work.

"We haven't been able to teach as many things as we'd like since so many of the players are so young," he said. "The team is getting to be quite flexible since we're not teaching as many pattern plays so there isn't as much learning process.

"They're going to be involved in more free-lance opportunities," he added. "We've been inconsistent at this stage of the workouts and you're just going to have to say we're going to have our good days and our bad days.

Cipriano admits his Huskers are moving at a slower pace than previous teams where upperclassmen dominated.

"We've had to change some of our thoughts on what we could best do as a team offensively since there are so many things to teach," he said. "But we're coming along."

While previous seasons have started with the red-white game, this year — the 11th in Cipriano's Nebraska regime — begins with undoubtedly the strongest opponent in the Yugoslavians.

"They've got more talent than anyone in our conference," he said. "They played over 20 games in September alone and they played together for 45 games last year.

"They're very talented, strong, in excellent shape and they're excellent shooters," he continued.

Before meeting the Huskers, the Yugoslavians play at Iowa State Friday and Monday at Missouri, winners of the Big Eight pre-season tournament the past two seasons.

Cipriano knows the task is difficult molding a team in a little more than a month to compete favorably with one that has been accustomed to one another for several years.

"The game will be good for us as a team, but we've still got a lot to learn," he said.

Declining to name his starting lineup, Cipriano pointed to nine players who would seem to be the logical candidates to earn one of the five starting berths.

Returning lettermen Jerry Fort and Ricky Marsh appear to be "strongest" at guards and forwards would appear to be selected from freshmen Ron Taylor, Rick Seidel, Mark Enright, Bob Siegel, junior college transfer Fred Coker, senior Brendy Lee and junior Steve Erwin.

"We've got five or six kids on an equal basis and our scrimmages from here on out will determine who starts," he said.

Following the Yugoslavia exhibition game, the red-white intrasquad game is slated for Nov. 27 with the regular season opener Dec. 1 — a home game against Wyoming, 65-59 victors over NU last year at Laramie.

Players Reminded About Kansas State

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

There are some weeks in the life of a football coach when he has to say little more to his team than tellimg them what plays he wants run.

Then, there are some weeks when his team must be reminded of what can happen if the concentration on the business at hand wanders.

With bowl talk and Oklahoma coming up next week for his Nebraska team, this is one of those latter type weeks for Husker head coach Tom Osborne.

"We are talking to them every day," he explained Wednesday, "about Kansas State and we've shown them a lot of film.

"I think our players realize that Kansas State is a good team, but there's also something in a name.

"The week of the Colorado game, we didn't have to talk to them at all and that doesn't mean that Colorado is any better than Kansas State, but Colorado is a name and Kansas State doesn't have that name."

Osborne cited Oklahoma State as an example of what he was discussing.

"Oklahoma State on the day we played them was the best team we've played this season," he pointed out, "But you're just not supposed to get beat or tied by an Oklahoma State because they don't have the tradition and reputation of a Colorado."

The Husker coach reiterated that the Saturday foe at Manhattan, Kan., can not be taken lightly.

"They have played some good football this year," he said. "And I'm sure they feel that if they give a good effort, they've got a chance to win and if they'd beat us, that would make their season for them."

Turning from the psychological to the physical factors in the Husker camp, Osborne said that middle guard John Bell was definitely out of the picture for Saturday, but the rest of the doubtful cases on Tuesday now appeared to be able to play.

Starting offensive guard Tom Allward was released from the hospital after a bout with the flu and practiced Wednesday and monster back Wonder Monds returned to practice for the first time in a week and a half after attending his sister's funeral in Florida.

However, Osborne said Monds might not be included on the 50-man travel roster that will be made up Thursday because "when you miss that much practice, it's tough to come back right away and play."

Defensive end Bob Martin also has apparently recovered from an ankle injury that has slowed him for the past two weeks.

Huskers In Romp

Nebraska is picked to romp over Kansas State in Saturday's game at Manhattan, Kan., according to college football forecasters Charlie Smith of United Press International and The Associated Press' Will Grimsley and Herschell Nissenson.

Smith, forecasting a 37-7 win, figures, "Might have been a good contest earlier, but not now."

Picking the Huskers by 38-10, Nissenson believes, "Nebraska's Tom Osborne thinks his team is 'vulnerable psychologically' following last year's 59-7 rout of the Wildcats. 'They'll remember last year,' he worries. They'll remember this year, too."

Grimsley is predicting a 25-7 Nebraska margin.

Nebraska By 18

Nebraska is rated an 18-point favorite over Kansas State by the nation's oddsmakers. In other Big Eight games, Oklahoma is 24 over Kansas, Colorado 3 over Oklahoma State and Missouri 7 over Iowa State.

Things Better For Wildcats

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Things took a turn for the better Wednesday in the Kansas State training camp.

Most of the Wildcats' walking wounded were back on the practice field, and Coach Vince Gibson was smiling as he talked about the 90-minute workout.

"Our offense looked better than it has for several weeks," Gibson said. "It's mainly because we've got more people well than we've had for a while."

The Wildcats welcomed the return of seven players who were either injured in last week's Oklahoma State game or earlier in the season. K-State faces 10th-ranked Nebraska Saturday.

Capitol Conference Title To Unrated Norris, 20-12

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer

Springfield — Unranked Norris converted a fake punt into a 32-yard second quarter touchdown here Wednesday afternoon and went on to outlast previously unbeaten Platteview, 20-12, in the Capitol Conference football playoff.

Junior Dan Schaepe, the short back in the fake punt formation shedded a pair of would-be tacklers on the run which gave Norris a 14-0 halftime lead.

"That's the third time we've used that (faked punt) and the third time it's worked this season," related Norris coach Ken Kasperak. "It worked in our second game against Wymore-Southern and against Crete for sizeable gains, but not a touchdown.

"We got a bushel basketful of breaks today," admitted Kasperak, whose 9-1 Titans handed ninth-ranked Class B Platteview its first loss in ten games.

Platteview, which pulled into contention on Monk Erhart's 46-yard third quarter touchdown catch, had two first half touchdowns nullified by penalties.

They were a 73-yard interception return by Erhart when the score was 8-0 and a 57-yard Jim Haynie to Paul McCune pass when the score was 14-0. Pass interference cancelled the first effort and an illegal receiver downfield call nullified the second.

Dan Schaepe also scored Norris' first touchdown on an 8-yard pass from shifty quarterback Rod Jasa. His brother, Richard Schaepe, got Norris on the board initially with a first quarter safety.

Norris all-state running back candidate Forrest DeVries was held to 53-yards rushing on 16 carries. But his last run, an 8 yard touchdown with 9:55 left in the final quarter, pushed his season rushing total to 1,003 yards.

DeVries left the game shortly thereafter, having sustained a head laceration while returning a kickoff following a one-yard Erhart touchdown.

Norris	8	6	0	6—20
Platteview	0	0	6	6—12

Platteview — Erhart (2) 46-pass from Haynie, 1-run.
Norris — D. Schaepe (2), 8-pass from Jasa, 32-run; DeVries 8-run; Safety, R. Schaepe tackled Haynie in end zone.

Central 10 Title Won By Ord

Ord — Greg Suelter led Ord to the Central 10 Conference football title here Wednesday afternoon by beating Schuyler, 26-6.

Suelter scored on runs of 30 and 18 yards and intercepted four Schuyler passes.

Ord	6	14	0	6—26
Schuyler	0	0	0	6— 6

Ord — Suelter (2) 30, 18-runs; Martin fumble recovery in end zone; Gogan 1-run. PAT — Wolf (2) kicks.
Schuyler — Kracl 5-pass from Peterson.

All-Stars Announced

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Baltimore's Paul Blair was a unanimous choice in the American League and Bob Gibson and Johnny Bench formed the battery in the National League, in the Sporting News' lineups for the leagues' all-star fielding teams Wednesday.

Blair was the only unanimous choice among the nine players selected in the annual poll of managers and coaches. The veteran Oriole outfielder was named to the fielding team for the sixth time in the past seven seasons.

The 29-year-old centerfielder has made a total of just 10 errors in 429 games spanning the last three seasons.

Both Bench and Gibson had their effectiveness cut by injuries and ailments this season, but the National League managers and coaches selected the St. Louis pitcher for the ninth consecutive year and the Cincinnati catcher for the sixth time.

The East Division champion Orioles dominate the 1973 fielding award list in the American League, with the complete squad as follows: George Scott, Milwaukee, first base; Bobby Grich, Baltimore, second base; Brooks Robinson, Baltimore, third base; Mark Belanger, Baltimore, shortstop; Blair, outfield; Amos Otis, Kansas City, outfield; Mickey Stanley, Detroit, outfield; Thurman Munson New York, catcher; and Jim Kaat, Chicago, pitcher.

The National League defensive lineup is: Mike Jorgensen, Montreal, first base; Joe Morgan, Cincinnati, second base; Doug Rader, Houston, third base; Roger Metzger, Houston, shortstop; Cesar Cedeno, Houston, outfield; Bobby Bonds, San Francisco, outfield; Willie Davis, Los Angeles, outfield; Bench, Cincinnati, catcher; and Gibson, St. Louis, pitcher.

Mencke Blasts Blair To Win

By RANDY YORK

Prep Sports Writer

Blair — Stan Mencke dynamited Fairbury's defense three times here Wednesday night to boost fifth-rated Class B Blair to a 23-13 win over the third-rated Jeffs in the Twin Rivers Conference football playoff.

The 160-pound senior halfback demonstrated remarkable versatility in scoring on a six-yard run, an 85-yard kickoff return, and catching a 32-yard pass from quarterback Randy Ashland.

"That's a typical performance for him," Blair coach Mike Lehl said of Mencke, who raised his school single-season scoring record to 144 points.

"The kid doesn't have a tremendous amount of ability but he's as fierce a competitor there is," Lehl observed, after recording his 102nd coaching win in 14 years at Blair.

The game, played in a drizzling first-half rain which turned into a downpour midway through the third quarter, reversed Fairbury's upset of Blair in last year's Twin Rivers playoff at Fairbury.

The win allowed Blair to complete a 10-0 season, its second unbeaten team under Lehl. Fairbury finished with a 9-1 record.

"This is the quickest and the best team I've had here. I wish we could have played on a dryer field," Lehl said. "We can play with anyone in Class B."

Junior Jamie Gutschow staked Blair to a 10-0 early second quarter lead when he booted a 40-yard field goal.

Fairbury, however, bounced back with 3:36 left in the first half as quarterback Greg Rosener hooked up with end Greg Gibson for a 30-yard scoring effort on a third down, 17 situation.

But, Mencke whisked 85 yards for a touchdown on the ensuing kickoff to regain Blair's momentum.

Rosener's 35-yard option sprint for a touchdown midway through the third quarter reduced the deficit to 17-13. But Mencke again responded with his 32-yard TD catch with 9:35 remaining in the final period.

Fairbury .... 0 7 6 0—13
Blair .... 7 10 0 6—23

Fairbury — Gibson, 30 pass from Rosener; Rosener, 35 run. PAT — Bedlan, kick.

Blair — Mencke (3), 6 run, 85 kickoff return, 32 pass from Ashland. Gutschow, 40 field goal. PAT — Gutschow, kick.

Sutton ends the season with a 9-1 record, while Wymore Southern finished 4-5-1.

Sutton .... 0 6 3 15—24
Wymore Southern .... 7 6 0 7—20

Pearson Scores TKO In 2nd Over Johnson

Defending Southeast District Golden Gloves champion Bruce Pearson scored a second-round technical knockout over Raymond Johnson during the second boxing smoker at the Men's State Reformatory Wednesday night.

It was only the second boxing smoker to be offered at the reformatory in the past 15 years and the first time that Pearson was matched in the Lincoln area this year and the third straight knockout for Pearson this season.

Pearson, fighting for the Easterday Boxing Club at 156, used body punches in the first round to bring Johnson's (156) guard down. Then in the second round, Pearson used a left-right combination to open Johnson's guard for a hard right cross to stop the fight at 1:45 of the second.

Another defending Southeast district champion, Ray Menefee, 125, Easterday, pounded out a decision over Foster Willis, 127, NPC, to boost his season record to four wins and one loss.

But one of the major upsets of the evening came when Ken Wilson, 130, MSU, scored a decision over Vic Pelster, 125, Petersburg, in Wilson's first fight ever as an amateur.

Pelster, trying to fight at long range against Wilson, was continually forced against the ropes by the relentless Wilson who then scored heavily with crisp left jabs and hard rights.

Wilson connected with a looping right against the southpaw Pelster to drop the Petersburg fighter for an eight-count in the first round. From that point on, it was Wilson's fight as Pelster was unable to put any combinations together.

Junior Gonzales, 120, MSU, used a combination of speed and hard in-fighting to eke out a decision over Glen Ellis, 118, NPC, in a hard-fought bout.

Ellis, who scored a knockout of Ray Phillips during the last week's Lincoln boxing smoker at Pershing Auditorium at 15 seconds of the first round — the fastest of the year, was unable to cope with Gonzales' speed as Gonzales ripped in crisp left jabs then came in with hard rights to the midsection when Ellis tried to come inside. Gonzales was named winner of the sportsman award.

1 — Mike Knutson, 112, Omaha, TKO'd James Lopez, 111, NPC, at 1:20 of 3rd.
2 — Junior Gonzales, 120, MSU, dec. Glen Ellis, 118, NPC.
3 — Ken Wilson, 130, MSU, dec. Vic Pelster, 125, Petersburg.
4 — Phillip Rayes, 134, Omaha, dec. Jim Schragg, Petersburg.
5 — Jim Pelster, 145, Petersburg, dec. Donald Johnson, 148, MSU.
6 — Bruce Pearson, 156, Easterday, TKO'd Raymond Johnson, 156, NPC, at 1:45 of 2nd.
7— James Moore, 173, Omaha, dec. Ben Berry, 176, NPC.
8 — Ray Menefee, 125, Easterday, dec. Foster Willis, 127, NPC.
9 — Rodger Pelster, Petersburg and Jerry Erving, NPC, exhibition.

Kuhn Studies Illegal 'Gifts'

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn is studying the involvement of George M. Steinbrenner, III, chief executive officer of the New York Yankees, in an alleged scheme to make illegal contributions to the reelection campaign of President Nixon.

"The commissioner is studying the matter," a spokesman said Wednesday. "When he has all of the facts before him, he will make a statement on it."

In addition to his baseball affiliation, Steinbrenner is chairman and chief executive officer of the American Ship Building Co. Two employees of that company have told Senate Watergate investigators that he devised a scheme in wpich thousands of dollars in corporate funds allegedly paid to employees as bonuses were instead turned over to the President's campaign.

The two witnesses, Matthew E. Clark, director of purchasing for the company, and Robert E. Bartlome, secretary of American Ship Building, said the bonus money was turned over to various committees that were subsidiaries of the Committee to Re-Elect the President.

Clark and Bartlome said the contributions totaled $25,000 in 1972.

Steinbrenner did not testify and Samuel Dash, counsel to the Watergate committee, said he had been informed by attorney Edward Bennett Williams that his client would invoke the fifth amendment, refusing to make any testimony which might incriminate him.

Allen Denies Abuse

WASHINGTON (AP) — Coach George Allen vehmently and angrily denied Wednesday that there is, what he called, a drug problem on his Washington Redskins.

"I'm positive of it," said Allen in a heated comment to newsmen. "I know we don't have a drug problem on the Redskins. I'm sure we don't and I'm not worried about it. My only concern is the Baltimore Colts."

Allen made his comments in reply to questions about a study reported by the Washington Post in which Redskins center George Burman said nearly one-third of the team used amphetamines through last year to charge themselves up before a game.

Burman also said he believed the one-third figure would apply to all the teams in the National Football League.

Earlier, in the day, a team spokesman said Allen would have no comment on the story, but newsmen questioned the Washington coach about the story on the field after practice.

Allen not only commented but called newsmen together after he showered to make sure they understood his position. He said angrily, however, that questions about the story upset his concentration on preparations for Sunday's game against Baltimore.

Burman, 30, who has been in the league since 1964, said National Football League teams had for years dispensed pills to the players but have stopped now. He said, however, that a significant number of players still obtain amphetamines on their own and use them before ballgames.

"You get a doctor to write a prescription or have your wife get a prescription," he said. "Those are traditional ways."

In New York, NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle issued a statement through his office in which he said, "George Burman comments confirm what our investigation has indicated — namely that amphetamines are not being dispensed, either directly or indirectly, by club managements.

"It is obvious, however, if his statements regarding players are true that we are going to have to have the active cooperation of the players themselves in eliminating outside sources," Rozelle said. "It is unfortunate that George has seen fit to label his teammates anonymously."

Rozelle said the league office plans to discuss the matter with Burman.

Burman, who has a Ph.D. in economics from the University of Chicago, said he had taken amphetamines regularly since 1965, his second season, through last year. He has been on the inactive list this year because of injury.

Humm Regains Lead In Big Eight Offense

Kansas City, Mo. — Nebraska's Dave Humm moved back into first place in the total offense department with only two more weeks of heavy duty left in the Big Eight Conference season.

Humm recaptured the top spot from Oklahoma's Steve Davis, who slipped to third. The junior southpaw for the Cornhuskers has accounted for 1,365 total yards in eight games for a 170.6-years-per-game average, placing him just ahead of Kansas quarterback Dave Jaynes, who sports a 169.0 average.

Big Eight To Host Yugoslavs

Kansas City, Mo. — European champion Yugoslavia will help usher in the basketball season for all members of the Big Eight starting this weekend against Iowa State.

The Yugoslavia Basketball Federation and the Big Eight have agreed on a home-and-home exchange with an all-star team from the Big Eight traveling to Yugoslavia next summer.

The Yugoslavs are led by center Kresimir Cosic, who played his collegiate career at Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah. Cosic (pronounced CHOSICH) gained all-American honors last year at BYU, where he completed his eligibility leaving a trail of broken records behind him including most points scored in a career (1512) and most career rebounds (472) which is also a Western Athletic Conference mark.

Yugoslavia is one of the top international teams. Many members of the squad, which is not limited to college students, earned gold medals at the 1973 European Championships at Barcelona, Spain. The Yugoslavs possess great size, experience, and ability. Many experts consider them to be behind only the United States and the Soviet Union in world competition.

The schedule of games, which will be played under collegiate rules including the use of the 30-second clock, is shown below:

November 16 — at Iowa State
November 19 — at Missouri
November 20 — at Nebraska
November 23 — at Kansas State
November 24 — at Kansas
November 26 — at Oklahoma State
November 27 — at Oklahoma
November 29 — at Colorado

Midwest Spells Defense, NU No. 1 Against Pass

NEW YORK (AP) — Midwest spells defense—at least in major college football this season.

Five Midwestern teams are among the first six in scoring defense, according to NCAA statistics released Wednesday. Ohio State is No. 1, allowing an average of 2.5 points a game, with Michigan 5.4, second; Notre Dame, 6.4, third; Miami of Ohio, 7.7, No. 4, and Cincinnati, 9.6, sixth. Alabama, 8.6, is fifth.

Ohio State also leads in total defense with a per game average of 181.1 yards. Miami of Ohio, 186.9, is second and Notre Dame, 191.0, third.

Nebraska gives the Midwest another first place in pass defense, with an average of 40.0. Michigan State, 61.7, is next, followed by Ohio State, 67.1, and Iowa, 71.14.

Eastern power Penn State leads in rushing defense, 66.4, with the Midwest holding the next four places. Miami of Ohio is second at 76.4, followed by Michigan, 82.3; Notre Dame, 84.0, and Cincinnati, 110.4.

Alouettes' Rodgers Earns All-Star Spot

Toronto — Nebraska's Heisman Trophy-winning Johnny Rodgers was one of eight members of the Montreal Alouettes named to the Eastern Conference All-Star team in the Canadian Football League.

The team, selected by the Football Reporters of Canada, named Rodgers as the all-star wide receiver. Rodgers' teammate, running back John Harvey, was the only unanimous choice.

Jayhawks Duo Hurt

Lawrence, Kan. (AP) — Two Kansas players were held out of Wednesday's practice, wide receiver Bruce Adams who is nursing a broken hand, and defensive end Dean Brock, who has a sore shoulder. Jayhawk coach Don Fambrough said both will be ready for action Saturday.

ASU Nets Top Yard Average

New York (AP) — Until this season, there were eight college football teams which had averaged over 500 yards per game in total offense. When this season ends there will be 10, and Arizona State will have three of them.

The Sun Devils, who averaged 516.5 yards last season and 514.5 in 1970, are averaging 544.9 after nine games this year and lead major college offenses, according to figures released today by the Nutional Collegiate Sports Service.

The chances are slim they'll catch the all-time record of 566.5, set by Oklahoma's Wishbone offense in 1971, but with an average of 260.2 yards in the air and 284.7 on the ground, Arizona State could rank as high as third.

The Houston team of 1968 is second on the all-time list with 562 per game.

Led by quarterback Danny White, the Sun Devils are just 1.4 yards behind front-running San Diego State in passing offense, 2.2 points per game behind leading UCLA's Bruins and two points per less than Alabama's Crimson Tide in over-all scoring.

UCLA and Alabama are way ahead in the rushing game, their 411.9 and 400.3 yard averages good for first and second place in the ground game statistics. Arizona State is 13th.

The Crimson Tide, averaging 515 yards in total offense, will also join history's 500-yard club. Although second to the Sun Devils over-all, their average is 37.5 yards better than third-place Oklahoma. UCLA is fourth at 467.9, and Temple fifth with 453.9.

Bruce Taps Hardeman

Ames, Iowa (AP) — Freshman Buddy Hardeman will be the starting quarterback Saturday when Iowa State hosts Missouri.

Regular signal-caller Wayne Stanley was still sidelined Wednesday with a severe ankle sprain suffered in last week's loss at Nebraska.

"Stanley may be able to play some, but won't be ready to start," said Cyclone Coach Earle Bruce. "We will know more about his status Thursday."

Bruce said the only other player who is doubtful for Saturday's game is offensive guard Dan Kneller. Jeff Jones would start if Kneller is unable to play.

Bruce tabbed sophomore Bob Bos as a probable starter at offensive left guard in place of Jeff Thomas.

Tailback Mike Strachan and tight end Keith Knepfle, both injured at Nebraska, were running a near full speed in Wednesday's two-hour workout.

Stocks Skid Again

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's energy crisis sent the stock market tumbling still lower Wednesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials skidded 21.15 to close at 869.88. The blue-chip indicator has fallen more than 117 points since Oct. 26, when the Dow stood at 987.06. Declining issues swamped advances 1,232 to 283 among the 1,822 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange. Heavy volume totaled 22.71 million shares Wednesday, compared with 20.31 million shares Tuesday.

The NYSE composite index of some 1,500 common stocks fell .99 to 54.82 Wednesday.

On the American Stock Exchange, declines led gainers 679 to 182 among the 1,171 issues changing hands, and the market-value index lost 2.06 at 100.10 for the day.

"The main concentration is still that the shortage of fuel may slow down the economy in 1974," said Robert Stovall of Reynolds Securities." "But today it's been compounded by a firming in short-term rates to brokers, and fears that the rise may spread to the prime rate."

First National City Bank raised its interest rate on loans to brokers to 9¾ per cent from 9½ per cent.

Gold stocks were sharply lower after major central banks had agreed to end the two-tier market, freeing them to trade gold on the open market. Homestake closed at 43¼, down 3⅝; Dome Mines closed at 101, off 7; and ASA, Ltd., fell 3⅛ at 44⅜.

Daylin, Inc., was the Big Board volume leader, down 1¼ at 5, followed by Coastal Gas, off ⅝ at 13⅜. Chrysler lost 1½ at 17⅞; Penn Central, Tuesday's volume leader, closed at 4½ down ½; and Teleprompter fell ¾ at 4½.

On the American Stock Exchange, Texas International was the volume leader, off ¾ at 10¼, followed by Houston Oil & Mineral, down 3⅜ at 63⅞. Great Basins Petroleum added ⅛ at 4⅜; TWA warrants lost ¼ at ¾, and Buttes Gas gained 1⅛ at 34¾.

Buying Move Boosts Wheat

Chicago (AP) — A strong buying move in the closing minutes turned a 14 cent decline in the wheat futures pit to a limit of 20 cents on the Chicago Baord fo trade Wednesday.

The strength in the wheat pit influenced a rally in corn and oats. A loss of some 14 cents in the soybean pit was heavily trimmed in the closing minutes, producing an uneven price range. Soybean meal was down some $3 a ton but closed $2 higher and soybean oil gained some 50 points.

Iced broilers were unchanged to a half cent a pound lower after a session of light trade.

Power May Be Sold

Vientiane, Laos (AP) — Sales of electric power are likely to emerge next year as a major source of foreign exchange for Laos, one of East Asia's least developed nations. The electricity will come from hydroelectric generators located at the site of the Nam Ngum dam, which was completed in December 1971.

Steer, Heifer Prices Rise

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Good midweek demand and light to moderate area marketings sparked strong to 25 cents higher trade on slaughter steers and heifers at Omaha Wednesday.

Recovery from last week's steep price incursions was not quite complete, but the market feeling was considrably improved, trade sources said. Quality of abbreviated run was generally good with a rather large percentage of the total running to choice and better cattle.

Canadian interests continued to play a supporting role in the market, but not quite to the extent it had before the recent imposition of sharply higher import duties on cattle and dressed beef entering Canada.

Omaha unloads Wednesday of around 4,000 head compared with about 5,000 last week. Dressed beef prices were little changed in rather dull trading at wholesale.

Other cattle classes here Wednesday were steady to firm in moderate trading.

Butcher hogs sold steady to 25 cents higher, most of the increase coming within the previous session's quotation ranges as the volume at the upper end of the price groupings increased. Sows were strono to 25 cents higher.

Slaughter lambs were about steady; choice and prime 110 lb shorn No. 1 pelts 35.00.

New York (AP) — Anatoly F. Markets For Gold Confused

LONDON (AP) — European gold markets were plunged into confusion and gold prices dropped sharply Wednesday after the American and six European governments took the right to sell gold on the open market.

The announcement of an end to the two-tier marketing system for gold was made in Washington Tuesday night by Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve. He also spoke on behalf of Belgium, Britain, West Germany, Italy, the Netherlands and Switzerland.

Bullion markets in Europe opened in confusion over implications of the surprise move. Since March 1968, trading in gold had been separated into official dealings with a fixed price between governments only and a free market for industrial buyers and speculators.

Should the governments decide to sell their large supplies on the free market, that would swamp the free dealers with sell orders. The presumed result would be a drop in prices. The slumping prices Wednesday reflected selling by dealers who feared such a development.

But central bank officials said their governments had no immediate intention of selling gold in the open market despite their having declared they reserved the right to do so.

Their statements steadied trading somewhat after the price had plunged as much as $10 an ounce. The metal rallied later but the price was still more than $5 an ounce down at the close in all centers.

The U.S. dollar appeared unaffected by the gold announcement in all European exchanges except Frankfurt, where it lost more than 1½ pfennigs. There was no apparent reason for the dollar's weakness there.

Burns said the ending of the two-tier gold system meant the United States will in the future be bound by the rules of the International Monetary Fund. These forbid its members from buying gold at a price higher than the official parity price. But they can sell it for more than that level to private customers or non-members of the fund.

In South Africa, the world's biggest gold producer, acting Finance Minister Stephanus I. Muller welcomed the action.

The price of gold closed in Zurich at $91 an ounce, down $6, and in London at $90, down $7.50. These are the world's two biggest bullion centers.

The price was $5.59 down in Paris at $94.34 and $5.72 down in Frankfurt at $91.48.

The dollar closed at 3.1925 Swiss francs in Zurich, up from 3.1845. It ended the day at 4.4275 francs in Paris, up slightly from Tuesday's 4.42425. In Amsterdam, the closing rate was 2.7020 guilders compared to 2.6985. The British pound closed virtually unchanged at $2.3937. But in Frankfurt the dollar ended at 2.5975 marks, down from 2.6145.

Senate Group OKs Boost In Social Security

Washington (UPI) — The Senate Finance Committee approved Wednesday a two-step, 11% increase in Social Security benefits for 29 million Americans.

The Senate committee acted as the House opened debate on a similar bill. That bill is expected to be approved Thursday.

In order to pay for the benefits hike, both bills call for an increase in the amount of wages subject to the Social Security tax to $13,200 annually, beginning next year. Under existing law, the $10,200 wage base would have risen to $12,600 in January.

The Senate committee bill calls for a 7% increase, effective upon enactment, and an additional 4% increase effective next June.

The House bill would make the 7% jump effective in March, 1974, and the remaining 4% effective in June.

New Gas Price Stickers Needed

Omaha, Neb. (AP) — A government official said Wednesday all gasoline and diesel fuel retailers in Nebraska must obtain new ceiling price stickers for each pump or grade of petroleum sold.

James W. Friel, economic stabilization manager for Nebraska, said new stickers must be posted on pumps by Nov. 21. Stickers must contain the new price ceiling and the minimum octane of the gasoline, he said.

Under revised Cost of Living Council rules, retailers are permitted to increase their May 15 selling prine of gasoline and diesel fuel to reflect increased petroleum costs on a dollar-for-dollar pass-through basis. Friel said this may be done only once a month.

Exon Lauds Regents' Hiram Scott Decision

By The Associated Press

Gov. J. James Exon said Wednesday that he was pleased with a decision last week by the Board of Regents to further explore possible agriculture research uses of portions of the defunct Hiram Scott College campus in Scottsbluff.

He suggested that the regents consider locating a new animal diagnostic center and a new animal research facility in Scottsbluff.

The two facilities are not proposed for the Lincoln campus of the University of Nebraska and $1 million has been appropriated for construction of the diagnostic facility.

Exon said the university's plans to explore possible use of portions of Hiram Scott for agricultural research were substantially different from previous plans the university had proposed for use of the facilities.

The college was built on the Parsons plan, a notion that higher education could be self-supporting.

Since the college folded, groups from Scottsbluff have made several offers to the state in hopes that the University of Nebraska would place some type of facility there.

The regents asked the governor to appoint a committee to study possible uses of the land by the university.

The committee conducted studies and said in October that the land should not be accepted by the university.

The regents voted last week to have another committee study the land for possible use as an agricultural research facility.

There are three principle parts to the defunct college. There are the dorms which are owned by bond holders. There is a large tract of agricultural land valued at $400,000 to $500,000, according to the governor. And there is a library science building owned by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The most recent offer discussed by the regents was a gift of the land on condition that the library science building was also accepted.

Moonshiner Claims Wife Very Thirsty

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — Moonshiner Cyrus Kerns, 67, told the judge Wednesday he made bootleg liquor to quench the thirst of his wife.

Ross County deputies recommended leniency for Kerns, and Chillicothe Municipal Judge William Sammons took their advice.

Sammons warned the defendant he could face a six-month jail sentence and a fine of $800 for manufacturing illegal liquor and possessing the still. Instead, he received a $250 fine and a two-month sentence.

Kerns testified that he made the moonshine whisky for his wife, who he said drinks up to five gallons of liquor in two weeks. He also said she drinks about 15 to 20 bottles of beer a day.

Federal and state agents, with the aid of deputies, raided Kerns' barn Tuesday afternoon. Officers said the liquor in canning jars was about 100 proof.

They also said they found enough whisky and beer bottles to fill a pickup truck.

Detroit (AP) — American Motors Corp., the nation's fourth largest auto maker, announced Wednesday that it has completed its most profitable fiscal year in more than a decade.

PUBLIC NOTICE OF HEARING
UNITED STATES ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY
NOTICE OF REQUEST

For state program approval for control of discharges to navigable waters.

The State of Nebraska has submitted a request for approval of its State program for control of discharges of pollutants to navigable waters under Section 402 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1972 (P.L. 92-500).

A public hearing to consider this request will be held on December 8, 1973, at the Nebraska Educational Television Building, Studio 1, 1800 N. 33rd Street, Lincoln, Nebraska, starting at 2:00 p.m. The hearing will be televised live from the studio and can be viewed on KUON, Channel 12.

The hearing panel will consist of the Environmental Protection Agency Administrator, or his representative, who will serve as the Presiding Officer, the Director of the Department of Environmental Control for the State of Nebraska, or his representative, and the Environmental Protection Agency Regional Administrator, Region VII, or his representative.

Section 402 of the Act provides that the State's program submission should show that the State has adequate authority under its laws to issue permits for discharge of pollutants upon conditions which comply with all pertinent requirements of the Act, to abate violations of the permit (including civil and criminal penalties), to insure that the Administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, the public, any other affected State, and other affected agencies are given notice of each permit application and are given the opportunity for a public hearing before the permit is issued. The complete description of the State program elements necessary for State participation in this program, designated "National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System," was published in Volume 37 of the Federal Register, December 22, 1972 (40 CFR 124), beginning at page 28390.

The State of Nebraska proposes that the Nebraska Department of Environmental Control, 1424 "P" Street, Lincoln, Nebraska (area code 402/471-2186) operate this program for control of discharges into navigable waters of the State in compliance with the Act. Chief officials are J. James Exon, Governor of Nebraska, Betty Abbott, Chairman, Environmental Control Council of Nebraska, and J. L. Higgins, Director, Nebraska Department of Environmental Control.

This request and program description may be inspected by the public at the Nebraska Department of Environmental Control, or at the Regional Library, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, Region VII, 1735 Baltimore, Kansas City, Missouri 64108 (area code 816/374-5828).

All interested persons wishing to comment upon the State's request or its program submission are invited to appear at the public hearing to present their views. Written comments may be presented at the hearing or submitted by December 15, 1973, either in person or by mail, to the Regional Office of the Environmental Protection Agency, Region VII, at the previously mentioned address.

Oral statements will be received and considered, but for accuracy of the record, all testimony should be submitted in writing. Statements should summarize extensive written material so that there will be time for all interested persons to be heard. Persons submitting written statements are encouraged to furnish additional copies for the use of the hearing panel and other interested persons.

All comments received by December 15, 1973, or presented at the public hearing, will be considered by the Environmental Protection Agency Regional Administrator in making his recommendations to the Administrator regarding Nebraska's request for State program approval.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
